Labor's Veto in Europe
Some Busy Grand Dukes
To Secretary Daniels
"Philosophy of Joy"

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1920.

Livy S. Richard, editorial writer, who follows world events with a serious mind, says "the most important happening in fifty years is British labor serving notice on the British government that it will not tolerate or interest itself in the war against Poland. That is labor in England exercising the recall."

American labor that must decide this Fall on the Peace League, the scheme to bring the United States into every future war, should know that first the labor of England and now the labor of France and England that they have had enough war and do not propose to be sent out fighting in order to enable Poland to get what she wants from Russia.

There is a mistaken impression in this country to the effect that "American labor is for the league." American labor is for peace, and therefore against the misnamed Peace League.

Certain officials representing a certain part of labor declared in favor of the Peace League in a convention at Atlantic City. They acted under the inspiration of their highest official, Mr. Gompers, an admirable and sincere man. But Mr. Gompers is an Englishman, born in England. Ninety-nine per cent. of him has become thoroughly American, but the one per cent. that represents his Peace League inclinations is one hundred per cent. British and not at all American.

Mr. Gompers, who lived and grew to be a man in England, quite naturally has intense feeling for the land of his birth. That is no reason for sending boys, born and brought up here, to fight in ninety-nine different parts of Europe for England.

The Pope has ordered world-wide prayers for Poland. Apparently Poland is in need of little other than spiritual help. Lloyd George says the Poles were warned not to attack Russia; their troubles are their own fault.

Russia is going ahead to prove with military victory—the only thing that the world or history recognizes—that she is not to be trifled with.

And Russian nobles and grand dukes, which is excellent news, are trying running truck gardens and dairies in France, and doing it successfully. That is better occupation for them than eating fancy French apples, pommes de reinville, at the Cafe Anglais at Nice in the morning and betting the limit at trente et quarante at Monte Carlo in the afternoon with the money of half-starved Russian peasants.

To Secretary Daniels: What do YOU think of using Germany's battleships, turned over to the United States, as targets to be fired at by our sailors, and sunk? Quite apart from the stupid suggestion that valuable metal is sent to the bottom of the ocean, what about national dignity?

Suppose the Germans had captured our warships and used them as targets, what would this country have said?

When a man is beaten and down you do not kick him in the face or in the ribs. And when you have given the corpse of a defeated nation you envy, if you choose, give them decent burial—better still, use the old metal.

If world of a nation to be those ships as targets when a floating board fence painted to look like a ship would make a target just as good?

Mr. Cox says that he sees a "philosophy of joy" in the Peace League speech made by his running mate, Roosevelt. Joy for whom? For profiteers, perhaps. The New York Times says in its financial column that Wall Street is "beginning to talk of big war orders and of great prosperity for American companies which can produce the goods which a war-smitten Europe will need."

American fathers and mothers also produce "goods" that Europe would get from us if we were tied up in the Peace League. There is "philosophy of joy" for profiteers in Peace League talk, not, however, for fathers and mothers.

This should interest business men and the advertising specialists who create business. Mrs. Yarzab, well-known Newark lady, kept a fruit stand, died, left many tenement houses and $185,000 in money—because her fruit stand was on a corner said to be the second in the United States as regards traffic. Because tens of thousands passed her stand she was really able to make a large fortune, a few cents at a time.

An advertisement, well written, well placed, in a "corner" commanding traffic greater than all fruit stand corners in the United States put together, advertising in all of the Hearst newspapers, for instance, is purchased by four millions of people in a day, seen by at least fifteen millions to twenty millions. Moral: Pick out the right advertising man, as you would the architect or engineer and put your advertising on the right "corner."

POLES TO ABANDON WARSAW

Russians, Bringing Up Big Guns, Only One Day's March Away

London, Aug. 11.—"The Russians are now only one day's march from Warsaw and are advancing everywhere," said a Basle dispatch to L'Information, Paris, today.

Word reached the Polish legation that the Poles have decided to evacuate Warsaw without a serious fight and to retire behind the Vistula River.

Polish airmen reported that the Russians have brought up heavy artillery and are prepared to bombard the Polish capital and the forts surrounding it if resistance is offered.

Up to the present neither Warsaw nor any of the forts defending the city have been under Russian fire because the Reds did not have any heavy guns at the front. On account of their rapid advance only light field guns were being moved up with the infantry.

Polish defence northwest and southeast of Warsaw has been broken and the Russian troops that drove through the gaps are now less than twenty-one miles from the Polish capital, according to a Central News dispatch from Berlin today.

The Polish government is reported to have told the British and French army officers in Warsaw that it has decided to carry on the war and negotiate peace independently because of the failure of the allies to give Poland any effective aid.

"On both flanks, along the Bug River, the Russians have overcome Polish resistance and have occupied positions from twelve to fourteen miles west of the river," said a Soviet War Office communique wirelessed from Moscow today.

A Warsaw dispatch says that fol-

TAXI CATCHES FIRE IN DEWEY SQUARE

Back firing of a taxicab owned by Cummings Brothers at Dewey square shortly before noon today ignited gasoline about the motor and caused a small blaze in the front of the car. Considerable fire apparatus responded to the alarm sent in by a traffic officer. There were no passengers in the machine. A dousing with a hand extinguisher stopped the blaze. The machine was operated by James Quinlan of No. 19 Bellevue street, Medford.

Paris, Aug. 11.—France has decided to recognize the administration set up in Southern Russia by General Wrangel, leader of the anti-Bolshevik army, as the de facto government of Russia, it was stated at the Foreign Office today. This decision, it was said, resulted from the military successes of Wrangel's army and from his democratic policy.

WOMAN BEATEN BY ROBBER

Thief Pounds Her Into Insensibility During Desperate Struggle in Brooklyn

New York, Aug. 11.—Beaten into insensibility in a struggle with a bandit, Miss Catherine Sullivan, forty two years old, a cashier and railroad ticket agent, was found unconscious early today in her booth at the Elm Place station, uptown side, Brooklyn.

Evading by a show of deaf and dumb signs the questions of a man ascending the "L" stairs as he left the station with torn clothes and scratched face, the robber escaped with $29.50, the contents of the till which Miss Sullivan fought so hard to defend.

Miss Sullivan was in her booth with the door locked after the last of returning theatregoers had passed through the station, when she heard the light lock smashed with a blow and turned to face a man standing in the open door. He demanded the contents of the drawer. She screamed for help. In the struggle that followed Miss Sullivan's glasses were smashed and the telephone receiver was knocked from its hook. She redoubled her screams in the hope that they would be heard over the phone, but no help came.

With one hand around her throat her assailant kept pounding her face with his free hand and threatened to kill her if she did not keep quiet. Several times he made a pretence of drawing a revolver.

MEREDITH CHARGES LIVE STOCK RATES ARE UNFAIR

Washington, Aug. 11.—Declaring certain rates charged by Chicago commission men on co-operative shipments of livestock to be unfair, Secretary of Agriculture Meredith today fixed rates to become effective on August 16, under the powers given by the food control act.

Secretary Meredith announced the following new carlot rates: For more than one and not more than ten owners, $2; for more than ten, but not more than twenty owners, $3; for more than twenty owners, $3.50; provided that in no case shall the owner of such carlot pay a higher rate than the maximum charge for a car having a single owner.

FEAR LOSS OF STATE PENSION

Jurists Here Refuse Increase That Deprives Them of Usual Retirement Pay

Chief Justice Rugg and Associate Justices Braley, De Courcy, Crosby, Pierce, Carroll and Jenney of the Supreme Court have declined to accept increases of salary authorized by the Legislature of 1920, one of the conditions of the act being that if the advanced salary was accepted the judges would not be entitled to pensions on retirement.

Chief Justice Rugg now receives $10,500 a year and the associate justices $10,000 each. On reaching the age of seventy years, and serving for ten consecutive years, a judge is entitled to retire on a pension of three-fourths of his salary. An increase of $2,500 for the Chief Justice and $2,000 for each of the other justices was contained in a bill passed this year by the General Court, but the forfeit of pension if accepted was a handicap.

Similar action was taken by the Legislature as to the twenty-eight justices of the Superior Court. The salary of each was increased from $8,000 to $10,000, but it was provided that they should not have pensions. All the younger members of that bench, and a few of the older ones, have notified the auditor of the Commonwealth that they desire the increase, but the judges who have been connected with that court for years and are eligible for retirement prefer to have pensions to which they are entitled.

MAN ACCUSED OF FORGERY DENIES HE CAN WRITE

Canaan, N. H. Aug. 11.—Joe Beanchine of Manchester has been arrested here on a charge of forging the name of Mrs. Maude Hamilton of Canaan to several checks. He was arraigned and bound over in bonds of $1,500, which he failed to secure. He told the sheriff that he could never read nor write, and that the name of Mrs Hamilton was written by a pal whose name he did not know. He was put in charge of a keeper here pending investigation.

BOSTON NOT HOT ONLY VERY WET

Observer Smith Quotes Figures and Webster to Show We're Not Seething

Having in mind merely the altitude attined by the mercury, today has not been so insufferably hot as the uninitiated may have supposed.

In other words, take it from an old weather sharp, it isn't so darned hot as you think it is.

Observer Smith, down in the Weather Bureau atop the Federal Building, sipped ice cold "lemon" through a straw today as he said to young reporters:

"The discomfort one experiences today is due entirely to the humidity, meaning, to quote good old Noah Webster, moisture; dampness; a moderate degree of wetness which is perceptible to the eye or touch, as penalty atmosphere, or of anything which has absorbed moisture from the atmosphere."

"At 10 o'clock, you observe, the mercury stands at 77—not to be compared with the 95 degrees of the record August 11th back in 1900—while we have 92 degrees of humidity."

Mr. Smith made his visitors feel good by telling them about the coolest spot in New England. Eastport, Me., where at 8 o'clock this morning everybody was happy in a temperature of only 58. The coolest spot on the map was Calgary, Canada, 52 degrees, with Helena, Mont., and Williston, N. D., tied at 54.

When comebody suggested that Boston appeared to be getting the worst of it—and added "as usual"—Observer Smith put a stop to that by exposing the fact that it was 74 to Hartford, Ct., and 848 in Key West, Fla.

And is there hope?

Bro. Smith made no campaign promises. He saw "no relief in immediate prospect. There is, he said, a "chance" of the East wind doing its duty. But he guarantees nothing and, as he is under the Civil Service, is not a candidate for re-election.

HAVERHILL LABOR MAN SUES FOR DEFAMATION

Haverhill, Aug. 11.—John H. Lutts, treasurer of Haverhill Local No. 201 of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance, has brought suit for $500 in the Superior Court against Theodore E. Liopulos, connected with a Merrimack street lunch room.

Lutts made a trip to Canada recently and upon his return he claims he found a story in circulation to the effect he had disappeared and that he had taken the whole or part of the funds of the union.

CONFESSED TO FORGERY TO PROTECT HIS FRIEND

Charles Ponzi today admitted that he was the man who was sentenced to 3 years for forgery in Montreal in 1908.

He expressed a fear also that he might be deported by the United States as an undesirable alien, but insisted tha that, while he confessed to forgery in Montreal, he was innocent and made confession and served in the penitentiary to save the man for whom he worked.

He made three statements in regard to the Canadian incidents as follows:

STATEMENT NUMBER 1

"What I fear is the authorities will have me deported as an undesirable citizen. Therefore I do not want to make any statement until I have seen my lawyers, and framed up a defence.

"I am positive that the newspapers can be sued for malicious intent in printing my past record.

"The fact is I did not commit the forgery. Carrosal did that. I worked in his bank and was a good friend of his. He had four little children and while he was away I supported the family for six months.

"I assumed credit for his crime for the same reason that I gave my skin to save the life of a nurse. When the trial came up I pleaded guilty to everything. I can produce witnesses to prove that I admitted doing it, and served twenty months in the penitentiary."

STATEMENT NO. 2:

"According to the records in possession of the authorities, it is true that one Charles Bianchi, in August, 1908, was convicted of forgery in Montreal, and was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary. But what the records fail to show is that this same man Bianchi had been sent to Canada by the Italian government with the object of investigating there certain conditions which necessitated that he should assume an alias while carrying on his investigations.—" Here Ponzi broke off and refused to continue.

(Ponzi then declared that if the papers published his admissions he would deny having made them.)

STATEMENT NO. 3:

"If the statement printed by the Herald and Post is true, Mr. Ponzi feels that either he is one of many who have made some mistake and paid for it, or that he paid for mistakes of others, or that the appearance of the rec-

REOPENS AMES WILL CONTEST

Old Colony Trust Co. Asks Court Interpret Clauses on $2,000,000 Estate

The Old Colony Trust Company, as trustee under the will of the late William H. Ames of Boston and Easton, has asked the Supreme Court for instructions upon certain two clauses in the will.

Mr. Ames left an estate of $500,000, and under the will of his father, former Governor Oliver Ames, who died in 1885, he had power of appointment of a trust fund of $1,500,000 left by his father for his benefit.

In one clause of the will, it is claimed he provided that his wife should have the only income of the $2,000,000 during her life, while the residuary legatees who are brothers and sisters of the testator contend that under another clause they become entitled to the income of the trust fund of $1,500,000. At the termination of the trust, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will receive a considerable share of the principal.

The case is being put in shape for argument before the full bench of the Supreme Court at its sitting in Taunton in October.

CAFE OWNERS AT NANTASKET FINED

Three restaurant owners at Nantasket Beach were found guilty in the Hingham Court for selling milk not up to the standard. Robert Paterson paid a fine of $20, Constantin Young $15, and Denis Kalonis $25. The three cases were the first of a drive against the sale of impure milk, which State officials are carrying on in Hull and Nantasket.

PONZI SAYS HE CAN'T FIND $275,000 PUT IN MANCHESTER BANK

ords might hide a deeper motive than it would be expedient to establish at the present time.

"If there are not true he feels that eventually the law covering libel will fully vindicate him at the proper time. In both cases, however, it is evident that some of the local papers are endeavoring to hurt him for purposes which are as clear to him as they are to the public."

The Boston American had known of Ponzi's connection with the Montreal affair for a week or ten days, but had refrained from publishing the fact that he had been identified as the forger. This course was pursued by this newspaper because Ponzi's activities were under investigation by the Federal authorities.

More than a week ago Ponzi was asked by an American representative if he were the Charles Ponzi, alias Charles Bianci, who was sentenced to prison in Montreal in 1908. Ponzi denied at that time that he was the man. Later a Montreal dispatch identifying him as Bianci was issued, and his counsel, Daniel H. Coakley, at which time both denied he was the man and characterized the story as a "fairy tale."

Ponzi was convicted of forgery in connection with a get-rich-quick scheme, following an alleged swindle stem in which he was said to have absolved his employer, who fled to Mexico.

The forgeries were said to have been committed in the banking office of J. Zarrossi, where Italian residents of Montreal were offered an alleged opportunity to make big profits in foreign exchange. The profits ostensibly were sent to their relatives in Italy, but never reached them.

Transcripts of the evidence which sent Ponzi to jail have been in the hands of the Boston police and Attorney-General Allen for some days.

CAN'T FIND $275,000.

Where is the $275,000 Ponzi claims he deposited to his credit in a Manchester, N. H., bank? He says the money is missing and lays its disappearance to officials who are prosecuting an investigation of his business affairs.

Ponzi first accused Attorney-General Oscar L. Young of New Hampshire of shifting the money to the account of Joseph Bruno, agent in charge of the Manchester branch of the Securities Exchange Company.

Young ridiculed the claim. Bruno denied the money was on deposit in his name and another New Hampshire official claimed Ponzi transferred it to the Hanover Trust Company in this city.

Ponzi says the money was not transferred and he cannot find the slightest trace of it.

"I don't need it," Ponzi nonchalantly stated, so I'm not going to worry about it. It will have to be produced sometime."

With State and Federal authorities in New England, New York and New Jersey striving to tear asunder the veil of mystery cloaking the assassins of Ponzi's "secret millions," the arm of the Department of Justice was today thrust into Mobile, Alabama, where a United States Secret Service Agent is probing Ponzi's two-year career in that city.

Ponzi, remembered by those who met him in Mobile because of his obsession for making millions, was discharged as librarian of the Mobile Medical College, a job which paid $30 a month. He became involved in a dispute with the University officials charging that they were trying to discredit the institution.

His Mobile scheme for making riches proving palpable myths, the sensation of the financial world abroad and he spoke in his own behalf by "pulling stakes" and leaving Mobile, in rags, for New Orleans in 1919.

ADVERTISED FOR GIRLS.

While in Mobile he inserted an advertisement in the papers for girls to sell pencils, but the women with whom he lived refused to allow him to use his room as an office and the vehicle he purchased, to advertise by riding in automobiles went the way of his other shattered hopes. Neither he was active in other financial ventures the Secret Service men say today attempting to determine.

Despite bankruptcy proceedings the suspension of his business activities and the closing up of his bank account at the Hanover Trust Company, his confidence still unshaken, advises his noteholders to "hold on" he will redeem his loans.

ASSETS $1,000,000.

Parrying the questions of interviewers with consummate skill when an attempt was made to pin him to definite figures at his home in Lexington, Ponzi, when asked what his assets totalled replied with a laugh:

"Oh, let's put them at about $1,000,000—that is, those I am willing to declare."

Asked what his liabilities today will total, he answered, with an engaging smile:

"Well, let's be conservative always—I should say about $1,000,000. They may total $700,000 or $800,000, but let up hope they are not more than that."

Asked how he could reconcile his statement in which he made two weeks ago that he had assets of $7,500,000, which is $6,500,000 more than he possesses today, while his liabilities have not shrunk, Ponzi smiled blandly and remarked:

"Oh, I say many things."

Whatever condition Ponzi's affairs may be in today, it is reported in official circles that Ponzi has never told the true truth when he said he had $7,500,000. At present he has a certificate of deposit for $1,000,000 at the Hanover Trust Company which will not be available for use until August 27, with other money.

WITHDRAWS $6,000,000.

It is reported from an apparently authoritative source that he has drawn from the Hanover Trust Company, ostensibly for the purpose of making payments, $6,000,000, in the past two weeks. With the time certificate now reposing in the Hanover Trust it is easily seen that Ponzi did have cash assets of $7,500,000, provided this report is correct.

The action of State Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen, halting payment of notes through the Hanover street bank has completely tied Ponzi's hands and the following sign appeared on the bank office door today:

"Closed until Saturday morning, 9 a. m., August 14, 1920."

Effort is being made by Ponzi to rush the Hanover depositors' notes which would cause the suspension of his bank irrespective of state's action. The auditing probe by the Federal authorities into Ponzi's affairs is about ended, it is officially reported and if, after the auditor's report of the financier's liabilities he is declared solvent, this event will dispose of involuntary bankruptcy action.

Ponzi's agents have told noteholders to hold their certificates and they will be redeemed Saturday and it is hinted that the decision of the Federal authorities will be rendered by the end of the week.

NOTEHOLDERS HAVE FAITH.

Thus far the noteholders who have reported to Attorney General J. Weston Allen, in response to his advertisement, giving the number, date and amount of their loans, appear to have implicit faith in their debtor. About 100 have registered at the State House office of the attorney, most of them expressing the opinion that Ponzi was a victim of persecution.

The paper held by these reporting to Attorney-General Allen totalled over $50,000. The largest individual note was for $5,000, held by a man who sold his home to invest with Ponzi. One group of four notes totalled $7,200.

Ponzi Has No Money in Lawrence Banks

Lawrence, Aug. 11.—Ponzi has no money in Lawrence banks, according to Percy Lamb, agent for him in this city. Lamb has money in his own name with which he has paid noteholders from time to time. Lamb states that he has felt no concern in risking his own personal account with Ponzi. All payments made from Lawrence banks have been signed by Lamb and drawn on his account.

It was stated that $100,000 was on deposit here during the rush of Lawrence depositors.

Mrs. Percy Lamb, wife of the local Lawrence manager, finished just a lap ahead of the order of the bank commissioner, having drawn $7,500 on a certified check of Charles Ponzi, through the Hanover Trust Company.

Fox-Trot Prescribed for Tuberculosis

Paris, Aug. 11.—The fox trot is one of the most effective methods of fighting tuberculosis, according to Dr. Gautier, a thesis by whom has just been read before the Academy of Science by Professor d'Arsonval. The tango is not quite so good, but it is better than nothing. The curative value of the fox trot is due to the fact that he dancers, rising on their toes, inhale a greater quantity of air than otherwise and this strengthens the lungs.

Dr. Gautier declares that it is not even necessary to perform an actual dance. All that is needed is to walk on tiptoe a few minutes each morning. When or where is the ordinary fashion the lungs are comparatively inactive and this is said to be one of the "favoring causes" of tuberculosis.

SAYS AMERICANS WANT LIQUOR

Wilkie Bard, British Comedian, Fears Prohibition May Reach England

London Aug. 11.—"They don't," said Wilkie Bard, British comedian just returned from an American tour, when asked how Americans like prohibition. "Some of them think it's only a passing fancy, which will disappear when they are so fed up that they can't stand water any longer.

"But I am not sure of this; there is any amount of money and brains behind the prohibition stunt, and if we are not careful we on this side of the Atlantic will wake up one morning and find all the public houses shut! Don't think I got nothing but water to drink in America, because I didn't—I got something much worse.

"That was a funny mixture they call 'near beer.' I tasted it and came to the conclusion that I had never drunk anything farther from beer in my life. I had to put some salt in it to give it any taste at all, and after two attempts to get on friendly terms with it I gave it up altogether."

"SOFT DRINK" BARS MUST CLOSE SUNDAY

Thompsonville, Ct., Aug. 11.—Even though saloon keepers profess to sell nothing stronger than soda, Chief of Police B. J. The complainants allege that the appearance of intoxicated persons on the sidewalks Sundays has resulted in their request that the saloons be closed.

RUSSIANS NEAR POLES' CAPITAL

Soviet Forces Are Bringing Up Big Guns for Attack on Warsaw

lowing a series of threats and cavalry raids the Russians are now developing their main attack against Warsaw, despite the fact that armistice and peace negotiations are scheduled to begin at Minsk tomorrow.

Masses of Russian cavalry are moving down the East Prussian frontier and have reached Prasnysz (which was captured), Ciechanow and Mlawa, the object being to cut the Warsaw-Danzig railway. The Russians are bringing up guns to the front.

The aim of the new Russian operation is to outflank Warsaw from the north-west and join forces with the Vistula River.

General Budenny's Red cavalry army is developing a new push, moving far in advance of the Russian infantry.

Four Polish armies are engaged in the fighting and armored trains are playing an important part in the efforts to stem the Russian advance.

The Poles occupy strong positions along the line of the city and the army command reports that the Polish army in the West "can hold indefinitely."

It is believed that the Russians will attempt to advance westward in the direction of Thorn.

Between the Bug and Narew Rivers the Poles are resisting with gallantry and violent fighting is raging over a section of the front.

The Poles holding the northern front were said to be short of ammunition.

POSITION OF ALLIES.

Great Britain, and, consequently, the allies, will abide by the peace which the Bolsheviists and the Poles negotiate at Minsk, in event the peace terms are accepted by the Poles.

But if the Bolsheviists in making the peace insist on terms that would mean the elimination of Poland as an independent nation a new condition necessitating action on the part of the Allies will have to be met.

This action will not be war.

It is believed that the substance of what Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain told the House of Commons in a long speech dealing with the Polish situation. He was practically a spokesman for both France and Great Britain as his talk resulted from the Hythe Conference of Sunday and Monday at which he and Premier Millerand of France and the naval and military advisors of both worked out their plan.

While the Premier was speaking the news arrived in London that the Bolsheviists will grant the Poles an armistice on the condition that the Polish army is reduced to 50,000 men within one month of the agreement, that the arms which are in excess of the arms of the 50,000 be given up, that the war industries be demobilised and that the importation of troops and military materials be forbidden.

Replying to a query from the floor the Premier said that America will be appealed to.

The Russians, the Premier said, had been aggressively attacked by the Poles against the advice of the Allies and would not be expected to act, as would be a guarantee against other attacks. But he added: "Nothing justifies retaliation, reprisal or punishment which goes to the extent of wiping out national existence."

STILL HOPEFUL FOR PEACE.

When the Premier entered the House was crowded. M. M. Krassin and Kamenoff, Russian emissaries to London, sat in the strangers' gallery. The opening words of the Premier were: "I am still hopeful for peace." He then reviewed the events leading to the present situation and came to the real nub of his effort in those words:

"If they negotiate an agreement at Minsk, we do not propose to intervene to upset any arrangement which is acceptable to the Poles. It is their affair. I sincerely trust it will mean peace, but if it does not we have got to face the fact.

"If failure occurs because the Poles are unwilling to accept the terms to which the Soviet is justly entitled, then the Allies cannot support Poland. If the Russians insist on terms which would threaten the elimination of Poland as an independent state then a new situation would arise."

PRODUCERS GOT LESS FOR FOOD IN JULY

Washington, Aug. 11.—Prices of principal food commodities paid to producers, decreased 11.8 per cent. during July, according to a statement today from the Department of Agriculture. BABY CIRCUS IN NEW LONDON

Feature of Competition in Which 200 Children Are Shown

New London, Ct., Aug. 11.—The first display at the baby show that is being held here for several days took place at the Jennings school on Colt street with nearly 200 babies participating. Posters depicting the care that should be taken of the babies were prominently displayed about the school and books on the care of the baby were distributed.

Toys were presented to each baby by P. Leroy Harwood and a baby circus with clowns, dolls, etc., directed by Fred H. Walsh was staged.

A baby carriage parade through the streets of the city was also featured. Dr. J. M. Glaney in the evening delivered an interesting stereopticon talk on "the care of the baby." Addresses were made by Mayor E. Frank Morgan, P. Leroy Harwood, president of the Board of Education, and Robert C. Deming, state director of Americanization.

BAUMEISTER GIRL DECLARES BOGUS DUKE HYPNOTIZED HER

DUPED BY TALE OF RICHES

"Could Not Refuse Him Anything," Says Disillusioned Eloper Now at Home

A remarkable tale of her erstwhile fiance's hypnotic power that induced her to elope with him to Providence is told by pretty young Marunion Baumeister of Cambridge, who was to have been married to Phillipe De Clamecy, the aged bogus nobleman at Providence.

Miss Baumeister is today back at her home on Rockwell street. She was arrested in Providence following the exposure of the criminal record of De Clamecy and after making a statement to the Federal authorities was released. De Clamecy, who had returned to Boston before his apparently disappeared. He is subject to a charge under the Mann Act.

She admitted that she had never been married to the man who boxed Boston a decade ago as the Duc de Nevers and said that she first met him a month ago on the street in Boston while she was stopping to pet a pretty dog. He introduced himself as "General" de Clamecy. Asked why she eloped, Miss Baumeister declared:

"I did not want to do it. But he persuaded me. He had that hypnotic power over me that I could not refuse him anything."

IS HIS THIRD VICTIM.

Miss Baumeister, it has developed since the exposure of De Clamecy's criminal record following his application for a marriage license, is the third love victim of the "Duke," since his original wife divorced him here about nine years ago. The other two are said to be Boston girls.

"When he was with me," Miss Baumeister explained, "I couldn't help liking him. He paid me love. When he was away I did not seem to care about him. Whenever I went over to his place on Columbus avenue he would fall down on his hands and knees in the parlor and beg me to marry him.

TOLD OF HIS RICHES.

"Well, after three weeks I finally decided to give in. He told me about his family in France, the great castle, the wonderful fields, the nobility, the riches and everything. It turned my head. I had always been a girl who had everything I wanted. I wanted more. I wanted nice clothes, money, pleasures. With the money he claimed to have I knew he could give them to me. My ambitions got the best of me. I consented to marry him last Saturday and we started off to Providence together about 4 o'clock. When we arrived there the City Hall was closed. He told me to say that I had already been married to him in France and we could get out licenses quicker. Our address was supposed to be in France.

GAVE HER WEDDING RING.

"When we found that we could not get the license then, he said that we were certainly going to get married, so he gave me a wedding ring and asked me to go and register with him at the Hotel Narragansett as husband and wife."

The books of the hotel showed that they took a room on the first floor, but the "duke" did not like that, so he had it changed to Room 632.

MAY CONTEST SEARLES' WILL

Methuen, Aug. 11.—A contest over the will of the late Edward Fanels Searles, multi-millionaire and public benefactor, whose estate is estimated at more than $50,000,000, is likely to be instituted, it is now rumored here, by Albert Victor Searles of Providence, R. I., a nephew and his nearest relative, who was left only $250,000 by his uncle.

To his cousin, Mrs. Mary Allen Rowland of Nashua he bequeaths $10,000.00.

"FRIEND" GETS BIG SHARE.

Of the entire estate, the residue, which is the greater part, is left to Mr. Searles' "friend," Arthur T. Walker of New York city.

Mr. Searles left no public bequests. The will was filed at Salem.

In a separate clause the testator requests that three boys, the children of Mrs. Rowland, assume the family name of Searles, and if they comply with his wishes, they become entitled to life estate at Pine Lodge, his Methuen estate. He further requests that they maintain the estate as he did and sets aside $250,000 for that purpose.

"He names the elder boy, Benjamin Allen Rowland, as direct heir to the property, and establishes the line of descent to Benjamin's issue, in default of which he selects George Rodman Rowland, the second boy. If Benjamin survives to assume the title to the estate, George receives $500,000 in that. If Benjamin dies and leaves no issue, George becomes heir to the estate. If George is not survived by issue, the third boy, John Bruce Rowland, becomes heir.

DEPRIVES BAY STATE OF TAX.

Mr. Searles has for years maintained a bitter feeling toward Massachusetts, whose tax laws drove him from this State to a domicile in New Hampshire and another in New York. He expressly provided in his will that none of his personal estate be transferred to Massachusetts for administration, thus depriving Massachusetts of a large tax.

Old Servants of Mr. Searles were remembered in small legacies.

To Edith Littlefield, cousin and housekeeper at Pine Lodge for a great many years, is given the use of her home on the Methuen estate and $100,000 absolute.

Another cousin, Sarah H. Smith of Nashua, N. H., is left $5,000, and Angelo Hamilton Bitzer, $10,000. William Shillaber, Jr., of New York city, a business associate of Mr. Searles, is named heir to all of the millionaire's holdings in the Newfoundland Packing Company.

Lane was taken into custody by a secret service agent while in his brother's saloon in Brooklyn.

BERLIN AWAITS SOVIET ENVOY

His Vital Communications May Make History; Germany Feels Her Position Is Stronger

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,
Boston American Staff Correspondent.

Berlin, Aug. 11.—The German government is awaiting with high interest the arrival here of Wigdor Kopp, the Soviet representative to Germany from Moscow. He is on route from the Russian capital and is expected to arrive Saturday although there is a possibility that he can get here Friday.

He is known to be bringing highly important communications and perhaps history making decisions by the Soviet government. With his return to Berlin, the Russo-German relations will become more clearly defined with all indications pointing to their entering on a distinctly new stage.

What that stage will be and how much of it will become public will depend on the conversations between Premiers Lloyd George and Millerand on the one hand and on the attitude of the French toward Germany on the other.

With the conversations between the premiers, with the British conference with M. Krassin and Kamanef, and political wrinkling between Berlin and Moscow which has long since passed the flirtation stage and with the possibility of a little talk between the German foreign minister, Dr. Simons, and Premier Lloyd George when they take their vacations in Switzerland, comes the promise of things of far-reaching significance to history.

In spite of all the dangers attendant on the several points of high tension in the last ten days and the uncertainties, there is for the first time since the armistice something like a feeling of satisfaction in Germany due to the assurance that her position is strong, is getting stronger daily, and that she is still in the European political ring.

That feeling has been instilled by the Russian defeat of Poland, by the proximity of the Russian armies to Germany and the fact that the entente seemed unable to do anything against Russia together with the remarkable unanimity of the German political parties from the Communist to the reactionaries if it becomes necessary to fight against the Allied violation of German neutrality.

It is openly professed that there is no fear of a blockade of Germany as the harvest is good. It is also professed that Great Britain knows full well that a blockade would automatically throw Russia and Germany together.

SUFFRAGE FIGHT REOPENED

Effort Made in Tennessee to Expel Lobbyists for Both Sides

By International News Service.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 11.—The fate of the federal suffrage amendment, now officially in the hands of the Tennessee Legislature, has never been so uncertain as it is today.

An effort is being made in the Senate to pass a resolution requesting all workers for and against suffrage from outside the State to leave and let the legislators settle the question without outside influence.

The resolution is fathered by Senator Lon McFarland, who voted for partial suffrage, but is opposed to ratification because of constitutional objections. It is aimed largely at the National Woman's Party, which picketed the White House, although it will, if passed, dispose of a strong anti-suffrage lobby as well.

McFarland's resolution is the outcome of an incident between Senator Seth Walker of the House and Miss Betty Gram of Oregon, a militant leader. Walker had been counted on by the women of the State, but, according to Miss Gram, on Monday night he had changed his views. At any rate, as she interrogated him, the opposition to suffrage became pronounced and many of his friends were indignant over the affair.

No vote may be expected this week, in the view of leaders.

In event the Tennessee Legislature ratifies the amendment, a legal contest will ensue, according to Judge Joseph Higgins of Nashville, president of the Tennessee Constitutional League, a recently organized association of lawyers. "If the Legislature ratifies the league will go into the courts to inhibit the Secretary of State from certifying the amendment," Judge Higgins declared.

Suffrage Leaders Become Pessimistic

Washington, Aug. 11.—For the first time since beginning the fight to secure final ratification of the Suffrage Amendment through the Tennessee Legislature, Suffrage leaders here today expressed themselves as pessimistic over the outcome.

"The outlook is dark," said Miss Alice Paul, Chairman of the National Woman's party. "There is no illusions on the part of many members who pledged themselves to vote for the amendment.

"If Tennessee fails to ratify, we will promptly concentrate all our energies in the Delaware legislature. If Delaware ratifies we will appeal for special sessions in Connecticut and Vermont."

A message to Miss Paul stated that the speaker of the lower house of the Tennessee Legislature, who had pledged to ratify and scheduled to introduce the resolution in the house, stated that he would not vote for the measure.

Mrs. Abby Scott Baker, political chairman of the Woman's party, appealed to Governor Cox to save the suffrage situation in Tennessee.

Hays Appeals for Suffrage Amendment

By International News Service.

Marion, O., Aug. 11.—Republican National Chairman Will H. Hays struck the first political blow in the national woman suffrage amendment by the Tennessee Legislature.

Following the receipt of the wire Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for President, Hays sent a long telegram to Republican legislators at Nashville in which he urged immediate action as a measure of simple justice to American women.

Asserting that "present unrest is in a large measure due to the fact that so many vital questions are decided without a simultaneous decision" Hays declared that one of the most effective ways to win back confidence in the government "can be settled immediately by the Tennessee Legislature."

"I refer to ratification first, in the hope of thereby clearing the political atmosphere, second, to the question of the submission of effective opinion works harm to the whole body politic, and finally to the declaration that we owe immediate action as a simple measure of justice to American women."

Hays informed the newspapermen that "there has been no change in the situation" in reply to a question to Senator Harding's campaign, and "there is no program or contemplation which involves a change."

Suffrage Officially Before Tennessee Legislature

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 11.—Suffrage for the women of the nation is now officially before the Legislature of Tennessee, which holds the power to make the Federal amendment operative.

The ratification resolutions were introduced in both House and Senate. In the Senate, Speaker Todd presented Senate Joint Resolution No. 1 and under the rules it went on the table for one day. Today it comes up for consideration. Then it will be decided whether the resolution shall be referred to a committee, or shall be left before the Senate for immediate consideration.

BROOKLYN TRANSIT CO. DENIES UNION'S DEMAND

New York, Aug. 11.—Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, announced that he had refused the demands of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America for "closed shop" conditions on the surface and subway lines of the company. Garrison said his refusal was based on a recent Federal Court order forbidding him to "deal with anybody other than a committee of employes of the company."

He also refused to grant requested wage increases, which, he said, would have totalled $15,000,000.

HELD FOR DEATH OF GIRL OF 19

Vermont Man Arrested After Killing of the "Pride of the Village"

Johnson, Vt., Aug. 11.—Accused of the murder of Amy Shonio, aged nineteen, a pretty factory girl, known to the townspeople as "Pride of the Village," Arthur Mudgett, aged thirty-six, a stalwart lumberman, is today lodged in the county jail at Hyde Park.

Coincident with Mudgett's arrest, State Attorney William Tracy and Attorney-General Archibald today pressed the examination of a score of witnesses at an inquest which is being held, Judge John S. Lynch presiding.

The 700 townspeople were stirred by the finding of the girl's body on a lonely hilltop on the outskirts of the village. The victim possessed an unblemished character and after leaving her home in Stowe, a nearby town, to work in a local woolen factory she won the friendship of the villagers.

The girl was in a serious condition and it was rumored that she had journeyed to the city and taken her life in a moment of despair. The villagers refused to believe she was a suicide and an investigation was pushed with vigor. Surgeons of the State Department of Hygiene were summoned from Burlington. Drs. Charles F. Whitney and Bingham H. Stone, toxicologist and pathologist, respectively, performed an autopsy.

The experts reported that the girl died from violence, impossible of self-infliction, and Attorney-General Young, withholding the form of alleged violence, applied for a warrant for Mudgett's arrest.

Mudgett, according to the authorities, admits that he knew of the girl's serious condition, but denied any close relationship with her. He admitted being on friendly terms with the girl.

Authorities see, in some aspects of the case, a parallel to the famous murder of Lucina C. Broadwell, for whose death George A. Long is now serving a life sentence at Windsor.

The State will give Mudgett an opportunity to obtain counsel and consult with legal advisors before asking him to appear in court. The accused is married, but has been separated from his wife. He has been employed at various tasks about the village for two years.

LAWRENCE MAN NEAR DEATH FROM FREEZING

Lawrence, Aug. 11.—With the thermometer hovering around ninety in the shade it sounds strange to hear of almost freezing to death, but such was the case of "Bert" Cox, son of a local fire-works manufacturer. He had been at work repairing the refrigeration system in his father's plant and was overcome by the escaping ammonia fumes. His predicament was noted by employes in the plant and he was rescued. Despite the fact that he wore heavy Winter clothing, ear laps and fur shoes he was somewhat affected by unduly prolonged stay in the zero temperature.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 11.—Bank deposits in New Hampshire during the year ending June 30, 1920, increased nearly $12,000,000, according to the annual report of the State Bank Examiner, which was submitted today. New Hampshire savings institutions are $142,294,810.82, according to the report.

Character Shaped by Alphabet, Says Psychic

Paris, Aug. 11.—Andre Lamande, noted French psychologist, propounds a theory on the psychic effect of the alphabet on personality. By a person's name, he says, one can read the character.

"O," says Lamande, denotes ambition, grandiloquence and brilliancy. A man whose name has one or many o's is fond of luxury, want to make an impression on his fellow beings and dominate them. If he is a writer, his language is apt to be rich, imposing.

"A" stands for harmony, flexibility, sentiment, delicacy and style. A girl with an A in her name is apt to be tender, refined.

"I" shows pride, haughtiness, aloofness. It may also, however, reveal an aristocratic turn of mind.

"R" expresses vigor, character, sometimes to the point of stubbornness or gruffness.

"S" implies will, malice, smartness. Lamande argues that the answer lies in the effect of the sound of our names, every hour, every minute, almost, from childhood, upon our characters.

GIVES WARNING TO CONSUMERS

Freight Rate Boost Should Add Only "3½ P. C. to Prices of Commodities"

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 11.—Consumers were warned today by J. H. Parmelee, director of the Bureau of Railway Economics, to beware of exhorbitant increases in commodity costs, based on increased freight rates, which go into effect August 26.

Parmelee said the average increase in commodities due to the increased freight rates would be less than three and one half per cent. There are exceptions in heavy commodities, such as coal, "

"The minimum income of the United States, including all production for present and future needs is about $75,000,000,000," he said.

"This has been estimated as high as $400,000,000,000. The income of the railroads, under the new rate schedule, may be placed at $7,500,000,000. This will indicate that any article costing $10 will return about $1 of its cost to the railroad gross income.

"The average increase in the cost of transportation under the new schedule will be about 3½ per cent. Adding the 3½ cents to the original dollar you will find that under average conditions an article costing $10 under the old railroad fares should cost no more than $10.35 under the new rate."

The figures showing the added cost to the consumer based on the theory that the rate increases are multiplied five fold before the consumer is called to pay his share have been computed on the wrong basis, according to persons representing the railroads. The total increase granted to the roads for all classes of passenger and freight traffic will amount to about $1,500,000,000, Parmelee said, as computed by the Bureau of Railway Economics.

80-Year-Old Woman "Lost"

Boy Sues for $1,000

Henry Davis of Newton has been sued for $1000 by Robert McGrath, a miner, whose father is Patrick J. McGrath of Newton. The boy alleges that he was struck by a car and injured.

In an effort to rescue two horses which had fallen into a trench in front of No. 123 Portland street, Ladderman Lawrence Harvey of Ladder 1, Friend street, received a severe gash in the head when a large pole fell on him.

Following the rescue of one of the animals, Ladderman Harvey, assisted by a crew of men, was attempting to get the other horse out by means of an improvised crane. The animal started to walk along in the trench, pulling the crane after him.

As the pole fell three men were caught under it, but Harvey was the only on eseriously injured. Both horses were badly cut and bruised.

ABIGAIL T. COLLINS TO WED FREDERIC J. CREHAN

Mr. and Mrs. Michael W. Collins of No. 32 Monument street, Charlestown, announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Abigail Theresa, to Frederic Joseph Crehan of Hingham. MANNIX WILL URGE RELEASE

Is Determined to Enter Erin; Jibes Capture "Without Loss of Single British Sailor"

London, Aug. 11.—Cheerful and undaunted by his experiences, Archbishop Daniel J. Mannix of Australia today defied the British government to do its worst. He intends to press his claim for freedom to go to Ireland by all means in his power.

The archbishop talked freely after his arrival at Hammersmith, pouring sarcasm and raillery at the government's tactics in drawing an admiralty and Scotland Yard cordon around his movements.

EXPECTS NO FAVORS.

"Since the battle of Jutland," he said, "the British navy has not scored a victory comparable with the chasing of the liner Baltic from the Irish coast and capturing without the loss of a single British sailor the Archbishop of Melbourne.

"The authorities probably think the victory worth winning and the money involved well spent even though their own friends of the press scarcely take that view. They received no consideration from the government and do not expect or desire favor or privilege. I do not feel bound by any of their orders and mean to press my claim to go to Ireland unless the republican government there signifies that my presence is unwelcome.

STILL UNDER ESPIONAGE.

"I have never been forgiven by Premier Hughes of Australia for helping to defeat conscription in Australia and thereby saving her from a military despotism.

"He is also hostile because while I was in Australia I thought it my duty to defend Ireland from the systematic vilification it received over the cables from London. In regard to my American speeches, if I made vicarious comment it was because it was deserved, and I stand by every syllable of my statements."

Scotland Yard inspectors are watching every movement of the prelate.

IRISH FRIENDS CALL MANNIX PROTEST RALLIES

At a meeting of the Massachusetts State Council, Friends of Irish Freedom, held in the American House, the following resolution was adopted, and copies ordered sent to the secretaries of the local councils and regular branches throughout the State not affiliated with local councils:

That we condemn the brutal treatment given Archbishop Mannix of Australia, by the British government, because of his defense of the Irish principles and democratic government, and we call upon all our branches in Massachusetts to rally to the banners of liberty in their respective communities. He said if the Irish 22, and register the strongest possible protest against this and all other outrages committed perpetrated by the British government in its campaign of terror in Ireland.

VALERA DENIES $500,000 FUND FOR U. S. POLITICS

Washington, Aug. 11.—Eamon de Valera, president of the Irish Republic, denied today knowledge of a fund of $500,000, which dispatches say was to be used by him in the coming American presidential campaign here to secure official recognition of the Irish Republic. He said if the Irish Congress had voted him such a fund he had received no official notification of the proceedings.

DEMOCRATS IN A HAZE

Indications of "Sleeping Sickness"—What a Harmonious State Convention It Will Not Be—Who's With Cox?

By C. O. POWER

It has been remarked that politics in this state is apathetic. Not so, it is worse than that.

In the Republican side there are symptoms of chills and fever and on the Democratic of sleeping sickness.

There's interesting, even funny, some of the things said by and about the Democrats.

For instance, here is the comment of one of the ex-State Democrats of some prominence who stopped over in Boston for a couple of hours yesterday on his way to the place of his vacation:

"Republicans are shivering over the idea of Pat Laughry winning the second place on the ticket. They fear he will link Channing Cox into hysterics if they are ever hitched up together in the coming campaign and that Cox would have to cover the State House if they should go separate ways."

A sarcastic Boston Democratic leader says Joe Warner and Charlie Burrill are saved to death that Alvan Fuller may promise to give the salary to charity if nominated and elected Lieutenant-Governor. Not that they care for the money but because it would be establishing a bad precedent.

From all the signs and portents, what a grand and gloriously harmonious Democratic State convention it should NOT be! There will, of course, be an attempt to command the Wilson administration and all that works. If failed last year and there is no sign of lessey opposition now.

Last year the convention frowned upon the treaty and the league covenant. The Democratic national convention indorsed everything. Article ten included. Last Fall the State Democrats recognized the Irish republic. The national convention did not.

Under the circumstances, it will be interesting to watch just how far the convention will follow the lead of Presidential Candidate Cox this year.

The big issue of last year which swept Coolidge into the Governor's office on the crest of a tidal wave is shaping up again this year for Lieutenant-Governor Channing Cox, who will be the Republican candidate for Governor.

Because labor unions refuse to be reviewed by Governor Coolidge, on account of his attitude on the police strike and refuse to march behind an escort of policemen who took the places of the strikers, "Law and Order" will again be the slogan of the Republicans.

That is what Democratic leaders have been told by Republican leaders. No matter what the merits of the case may be the slogan has made Coolidge nationally famous and Cox is fortunate to have it handed down to him.

Let's take a look at the Congressional situation hereabouts. There's Chevalier George Holden Tinkham's district threatening to get away from him, so the Democratic friends of Al Moore claim. Both are famous. Moore as a navy band hero and George as the statesman-warrior who broke his arm pulling the string that loosed the first American artillery fire on the Austrians. And that was only one of the trifling incidents of his trip to see the boys on the Rhine line.

Two of the Democratic Congressmen are in real danger. One has the fight of his life on his hands and the other has a cinch. "Dick" Mahony, in the Norfolk-South Shore district is in trouble with Louis A. Frothingham as his Republican opponent.

The former lieutenant-governor is an attractive speechifier and clever campaigner and, while nobody has ever accused Richard of not knowing his way around the district, he will have an added obstacle to overcome this time in the popularity of his opponent with the World War veterans and their friends.

Republicans — and others — have blamed President Wilson for many things that displeased them, but the worst came the other day when Editor Fish Marden of Lowell hinted that he might be guilty of having had the New England census deliberately played down.

This is too much, even from the brilliant author of that famous epic entitled "Whose Hootch in the Republican Party?" written in commemoration of the trip of the Massachusetts delegates to the recent Republican national convention.

Mayor Hill White of Lawrence has had an automobile thrust upon him. He says he heard about it in advance and asked the boys not to do it but they would not mind him. It is a good thing the presentation was not made by Bill Wood of the American Woolen Company because, for one thing, he could not have made such a touching speech as Isadore Gordon made.

KILLED BY OWN GERM TEST

Doctor Gives Life in Proving Theory of Spinal Meningitis Origin

Philadelphia, Aug. 11.—Dr. George D. Heist of Germantown, who died Sunday night in the Jewish hospital, proved his theory of germ culture at the cost of his life, according to Dr. Myer Solis-Cohen.

Dr. Solis-Cohen was with Dr. Heist two hours before his death. At that time Dr. Heist, weak from illness, but still retaining possession of his faculties, said to his associate:

"My condition proves my contention. I am highly susceptible to epidemic cerebro spinal meningitis as my early experiments led me to believe. I am unable to throw off the disease."

Discussing his colleague's death, Dr. Solis-Cohen said:

"Dr. Heist's research work brought to light facts of immeasurable value to the medical profession. His discoveries will be treasured by those who follow him.

"In studying why some animals develop pneumonia and others never never take the disease, and while some are susceptible to infantile paralysis and others could not be inoculated, Dr. Heist found that when the germ of pneumonia was grown in the blood of a chick, known to be immune, the germ was killed; while in the blood of a mouse, known to be susceptible, the germ grew with great rapidity.

"Similarly the blood of rabbits, not susceptible to infantile paralysis, killed the infantile paralysis germs, while the germ grew readily in the blood of humans who are susceptible.

GREW GERMS IN OUR BLOOD.

"While with the army during the late war Dr. Heist made an investigation of epidemic cerebro-spinal meningitis, in the course of which he showed the germs of this disease grew readily in his own blood, which indicated, according to his theory, that he was highly susceptible to this disease.

"When he was taken ill of the disease he made a scientific study of his case. The development of the disease bore out his theory in every respect."

22 IN SOUTH BOSTON AFTER HOUSE SEATS

With "Bill" Manning of Ward 9, "Bob" Bigney and "Bill" McDonnell of Ward 10, and Owen Gallagher of Ward 11, all seeking the one available seat in the Senate from the Peninsular district, it looks like an old-time scrap in the Democratic stronghold.

In Ward 9 there are twelve candidates who are fighting for the House nomination for two places, while Ward 10 has seven aspiring politicians. Ward 11 will have but three House candidates.

Blast Cuts Live Wire; Man Electrocuted

Houlton, Me., Aug. 11.—Isaac Chase, aged forty-four of this town, was electrocuted while blasting with a road crew on the North road leading to Presque Isle, a few miles outside of this town. A stone thrown by the blast severed a high tension wire which fell, striking him on the head. The charge in the blast which was extra heavy, owing to the nature of the rock they were blasting, threw stones several hundred feet. Death was said to have been instantaneous. Chase is survived by a widow.

WET SWAY LAID TO POLITICS

Dry Leader Demands Divorce of Volstead Act from Influences of Politicians

Washington, Aug. 11.—Enforcement of the prohibition amendment and the Volstead act must be taken out of politics if "100 per cent. enforcement" is to be obtained, Deets Pickett, secretary of the Board of Temperance of the Methodist Episcopal Church, declared here.

The secretary made it plain that he was not taking a dig at the present administration.

"It would be the same under any administration," he said. "Politics naturally results in placing local enforcement sometimes in the hands of men not entirely in sympathy with the act."

Prohibition leaders here feel they cannot count on any active campaign for rigid enforcement until there is something to awaken the anti-liquor forces to action.

"They are resting on their laurels now but any move to take the victory from them, or depreciate its value, will find them ready to fight for rigid and continued enforcement," Pickett declared.

"Great credit should be given Prohibition Enforcing Officer Kramer," Pickett added. "I should say that the Volstead law is being enforced up to about 85 per cent."

PEACE IN SHOE STRIFE NEAR

Both Unions and Manufacturers Favor New Pact to Be Presented This Week

Haverhill, Aug. 11.—It is probable that the new "peace pact," which is expected to be a solution of future industrial troubles in Haverhill, will be presented to the Haverhill Shoe Manufacturers' Association by General Agent Joseph C. Goyette of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union this week.

The various locals of the union, which is composed of 18,000 members, are voting on the proposition at mass meetings and the members are practically unanimous in favor of the pact.

The Manufacturers' Association, composed of 65 firms, will make no official statement at this time, but it is understood that they are favorable to the proposition. The pact eliminates possibility of strikes and walkouts, and puts questions up to a board of adjustment composed of manufacturers and union representatives with a final decision.

The question of prices will come up later and it is planned to present uniform price lists based upon the average highest prices paid in each factory department. The lists are to become effective and expire at a uniform time.

At present out of 23,000 shoe workers in Haverhill, less than a third are working. Five thousand are out of the city working at beaches and camps. The situation in the city's shoe industry was never so acute as at the present time.

WANTS PROVOST BEACH GUARD

Revere Mayor Says Navy Officials Could Have Prevented Riot

Mayor Roscoe Walsworth of Revere takes issue with the order of Captain John J. Hyland, U. S. N., acting commandant at the Charlestown Navy Yard, barring all sailors from Revere Beach least they become "the object of the wrath of the police."

"It seems to me," says the Mayor, "that if the Navy Yard sent a provost guard to the beach, as was requested by me more than a month ago, the riot of Sunday night would have been prevented and State property would have been saved. At any rate responsible representatives of the Navy Department would have been on hand to report the true facts to their commandant.

1 Stubborn Policeman Keeps 56 Sweltering

Haverhill, Aug. 11.—Fifty-six policemen are sweltering in this humid hot weather and are kicking because one of the their number refuses to spend money to buy an alpaca coat. City Marshal Worcester informed the officers recently that if all could buy the alpacas and discard their heavy woolen blouses during the hot weather.

All but one agreed. The officers asked the marshal to order the the officer to buy a coat, but he says that would be exercising his authority. At roll call one officer in the department is very unpopular.

HYANNIS SHOPS ARE LOOTED

Fashion Stores Stripped of Thousands in Dresses, Linens and Millinery

Hyannis, Aug. 11.—Police investigation of the robbery of several thousand dollars' worth of merchandise from three shops in Maloney Block has failed to clear up the situation or bring out any clew to the thieves.

Private detectives have been assigned to the case for the owners of the property.

The burglars entered the shops with false keys and stripped the counters and shelves of all valuable dresses, suits, linen, gowns and millinery.

Moir Grant Company, gowns; the Cunningham Millinery Shop and Howall Brothers, household linens, are the principal losers. A complete inventory of the stolen articles has not been completed.

OLD PLAYGROUND TO BE RENAMED FOR VETERAN

The Park and Recreation Commissioners has voted to grant the City Council's request that the name of the Columbus avenue playground be changed to the William E. Carter playground in memory of a Boston boy who died in the World War. The Mayor approved the vote.

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and kill it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—Advertisement.

A ten-strike for August!

AUGUST is not ordinarily a good month, as total volumes of business go. But it is a grand good stock-up time for forehanded folks.

Taking all these factors into mind, we have decided to make August a big month.

We have had our buyers in the markets looking for the best values obtainable, and working a great deal harder to get these good values for less.

During this month we shall not only clear our stocks:

We shall clear the stocks of dozens of manufacturers and pass these savings along.

SEE THAT YOU GET YOUR SHARE OF THESE SAVINGS.

Examples:

Duvetyne hats, $7.50
Also Lyons velvet and feather turbans. Sixth floor.

Savings on new blouses

(Filene's—mail orders filled—sixth floor)

Women's black satin fagoted dresses, $39.50

(Filene's—mail orders filled—sixth floor)

Often asked for—but not as low as $29.50

Women's satin dresses, Georgette tops, $29.50

HUB ULSTERMEN SEE U. S. CRISIS

Urge Position of Candidates on Irish Question Be Made Known

Boston Branch of the Ulster League in North America, at a meeting in Tremont Temple, declared that the United States is facing a political, financial and industrial crisis and called upon Protestant men and women to aid in averting the impending dangers. In a declaration of purpose it was asserted that both Democratic and Republican parties had passed from the control of the people "to the great special interests," and resolved that the restoration of the rule of the people was urged.

Relative to the Irish question in American politics, the declaration states:

"It is regarded as of great importance to know the position of the candidates for State and Federal office on the so-called Irish question. As this is not meant their opinion in regard to the merits of Irish claims, whether for independence and absolute separation from Great Britain, extended self-government under the union or otherwise, but the more vital question affecting Americans, interference in domestic affairs solely within the control of a foreign government."

NEW STEAMSHIP LINE FROM HUB TO BRITAIN

LABOR UNIONS RAP CLEMENT

Vermont Branch, A. F. of L., Scores Governor's Record on Woman Suffrage

St. Albans, Vt., Aug. 11—Governor Clement of Vermont has been severely censured in the report of the State Branch American Federation of Labor, now in session here, for his attitude on woman suffrage, his refusal to appoint representative labor men to State boards and for failing to cooperate in the agricultural and industrial activities of Vermont.

The attack on the State executive and his administration featured the report of the executive committee, which was submitted by Alexander Ironside of Barre, secretary of the State branch. It was a frank discussion of conditions in Vermont as seen from the viewpoint of organized labor.

"In the view of labor leaders there is much to be done in a legislative sense before the Commonwealth will be abreast of the times, according to the report. The delegates are urged to see that the next Governor "places himself squarely in favor of women's rights and votes."

How To Beautify Your Complexion

By VIOLA DANA

That sensational actress, Viola Dana, who is recognized as an authority on beauty topics says: "The best and quickest method of obtaining a beautiful rosy-white complexion is to thoroughly cleanse the face night and morning, then apply that popular beautifier, Derwillo, which has become a regular fad with over five hundred thousand discriminating girls and women in the United States. Derwillo takes the place of face powder as it is more life-like in appearance, its use cannot be detected and it stays on until you wash it off. Perspiration does not affect it nor will it rub off on clothing, and the wonderful sale it has had proves that it is superior to all other beautifiers and face powders. There is nothing like it for dark, sallow skin, freckles, tan, coarse pores, wrinkles and many other facial blemishes. It is guaranteed absolutely harmless and sold at toilet counters everywhere with the understanding that if you don't like it they will give you back your money. Be sure to read the large article by Miss Dana soon to appear in this paper. It gives a world of valuable information on the care of the skin, something every girl and woman should know about. In the meantime get Derwillo and try it today. You will be astonished at the quick results it gives.

U. S. IS PROBING MILLS' CLOSING

Investigator Seeking Evidence of Conspiracy Among Manufacturers in New England

Washington, Aug. 11.—The Department of Justice for more than a week, it was learned here, has been investigating the closing of textile mills in New England and New York to determine whether a conspiracy exists among manufacturers.

A special investigator left Washington several days ago to survey the textile centers at first hand. His identity is being kept secret, it was said today at the department. District attorneys have been instructed to cooperate.

Mill operators sixty days ago were unanimous in declaring high prices were due to under-production, according to justice officials. Now, the officials point out, the operators declare production is ahead of consumption. This would be an impossible transformation in two months, officials believe.

'KISSING TIME' SCORES HIT

Lyrics Bright and Funny, While Cast Contains Many Popular Players

By FRED J. McISAAC.

"Kissing Time," the new musical comedy, which has alighted at the Shubert Theatre, is a dainty little affair. I am not wont to revel in musical comedies on sizzling evenings, but I liked "Kissing Time," despite the equatorial weather.

The piece was written by George V. Hobart; music by Ivan Caryll, and lyrics by Philander Johnson. It was founded upon an original story called "Mimi," by Adolf Philipp and Edward Paulton, and not stitched bodily from a French farce, as one might think to hear the actors pronounce French names and places.

NORRIS IN CAST.

It's a nice little company that the Empire Producing Corporation, whatever that is, has managed to assemble. There is William Norris, so pleasantly remembered from "Maytime," and a familiar friend for about a quarter of a century or more, Edith Tallaferro, a very sweet little ingenue who used to play Rosalind to Sothern's Rosalind at Yale, Dorothy Maynard, sophisticated prima donna; Percy Pinkham, an agreeable boy with a good voice, and Frank Doane, a comedian with a rough exterior, but a noble heart.

And the chorus runs to shapely blondes (dyed by their own hand!) who are pretty, but plentifully unbostered. It was a pleasant to sit comfortably in an orchestra chair and see the little globules of sweat chase little rivulets in their make-up as they danced merrily through a dozen musical numbers.

LYRICS BRIGHT AND FUNNY.

Ivan Caryll has written a graceful and melodious score with two or three real tunes in it, and Johnson's lyrics are bright and funny, but Hobart's dialogue is as laborious as usual and even a skillful word slinger like Bill Norris is unable to make most of it sound funny.

There is a pretty and rather unusual story interrupting the musical numbers every few minutes. To me the piece is enjoyable because it lacks cabaret ructions, the conventional whirlwind dancers and washboilers in the orchestra. But I think it might be improved by amputating some of the art speeches and making everybody walk faster and move around more.

$2,500 FREIGHT CAR FIRE AT BRIGHTON YARD

Fire in an empty freight car on the Boston & Albany railroad tracks near the Faneuil station, Brighton, caused $2,500 damage to the car and to a gondola adjoining. The cause of the fire is unknown. Crews of shifting engines working in the North Brighton freight yards removed many freight cars from the vicinity of the blaze as the fire department worked.

TENOR REFUSES ELEPHANT RIDE

Harrold Prefers to Make Triumphal Entry in "Aida" on Foot

Orville Harrold, the grand opera tenor, refuses to ride an elephant.

Harrold, who is one of the stars of the Metropolitan Opera and was originally discovered driving a milk wagon by the late Oscar Hammerstein, has notified the management of the Pilgrim production of "Aida" at Braves Field on Wednesday evening, September 1, that he will not enter in the triumphal scene upon the back of an elephant. Under no circumstances will he do any singing from such a vantage point.

HAS TO DRAW LINE.

"Elephants are all right," explained Mr. Harrold. "I like to see them in circuses, and as your Boston people point out the ancient Egyptian generals always rode elephants instead of horses, camels or goats. But I am an opera singer, and while I like to be realistic in my roles I have to draw the line somewhere. As Rhadames I have entered in the triumphal scene in a chariot, on horseback or on foot. But an elephant is altogether too high from the ground. Supposing when I sing high C the elephant doesn't understand and gets scared. Supposing the elephant should start waving his trunk around and I should watch him instead of the conductor waving his baton around. Why, the opera would be ruined.

RESIGNS THE GLORY.

"I am tremendously impressed at the gigantic production of "Aida" you are preparing in Boston, and I think it is a wonderful thing to have elephants and camels, in addition to one thousand soldiers in the Egyptian celebration for the tenor role, but if it's all the same to you let somebody else ride the elephant. I resign the glory. I am willing to enter on foot and let the elephant go first."

The management of the "Aida" present admit that riding an elephant was not in Harrold's contract, and they say that the matter can be arranged as he suggests. Somebody else will ride the elephant.

CITY GETS SUGAR AT ONE CENT OFF RATE

The city of Boston has purchased 25,250 pounds of sugar at twenty-one and one-half cents a pound, which, according to purchasing agent George J. Cronin, is one cent a pound below the present market price.

The sugar is to be divided among the following institutions: City Hospital, 24,500 pounds; Long Island Hospital, 5,250 pounds, and Consumptives Hospital, 3,500 pounds.

Dimple-Knee Girls to Wear Half Hose

New York, Aug. 11.—These! Now hosiery makers and plump girls may smile in unison.

It was announced today that owing to the high price of materials, half-hose will be featured upon the market by many principal manufacturers instead of the regulation long silk stockings which have come to be associated with desirable lingerie.

With the announcement there was volunteered the information that half-hose have attained popularity upon bathing beaches; also that they should be wrapped up by women who wear no corsets because of a tendency to stay up whatever the provocation to do otherwise.

URGES SCHOOLS FOR FIREMEN

Mass. Association Favors Adoption of Lawrence Plan; Elect Gallagher President

Worcester, Aug. 11.—Cities having paid fire departments were urged to appropriate funds for the maintenance of training schools for firemen by a resolution passed at the annual convention of the Massachusetts Permanent Firemen's Association. The plan now in vogue in Lawrence was cited as one which it might be well for other cities to pattern after. This plan had the unanimous indorsement of the 250 delegates present, representing cities and towns of the entire State having permanent fire departments.

John Kelly of Lawrence, president of the association for many years up to two years ago, was presented a gold watch and chain in appreciation of his services in building up the organization.

The newly-elected officers are: John F. Gallagher, Taunton, president; Joseph McCann, Woburn; John F. O'Brien, Salem, and Daniel J. McCarthy, Brookline vice-presidents; Thomas F. Powers, Worcester, secretary; Ernest A. Slattery, Fitchburg, treasurer; Fred Gould, Boston, Michael Clancy, Chicopee, Edward F. Cunningham, Lowell, M. J. Canning, Milton, Thomas Manning, Lawrence, William Gray, Springfield, Fred Bromley, Haverhill, Thomas Burke, Fall River, James N. Dately, Holyoke, directors; Daniel J. Hannan, Peabody, sergeant-at-arms.

Drunkenness Doubled in England in Year

London, Aug. 11.—Drunkenness convictions last year were double those of 1918, according to a blue book on the liquor question. England is not retaining her war sobriety.

Causes named include more money and leisure for workers, less self-control and an inability to realize that general sobriety is as desirable in peace time as during war.

BIG GOLF STARS MUST SPEED UP TO QUALIFY IN NATIONAL OPEN

SCORES ARE LOW AT TOLEDO

60 Players With 79 or Better for the First Round of Play

By ROBERT E. HARLOW,
Special Correspondent of Boston American.

Toledo, O., Aug. 11.—The great field of golfers in the national open championship at the Inverness Club started today on the final 18 holes in the 36-hole qualifying round at the Inverness Club with weather conditions excellent for good scoring. It was thought that no total for these two rounds of worse than 156 would qualify.

There was great interest in Ted Ray, the big Englishman who finished third in the British open championship in June, for he took 80 strokes for his first round and needed a very low card today in order to qualify. His partner, Harry Vardon, with a 75 for the first round, appeared certain of qualifying.

Walter Hagen, the American open champion, and Jim Barnes had no easy job today, for Hagen used 78 and Barnes 79 in their first round. They were in danger of failing to qualify, as 80 players were 79 or better for the first round.

Diegel Lead Field in Opening Round

Leo Diegel of the Lake Shore Club of Chicago had the edge on the field for the first eighteen holes which he did in 71 strokes, taking 35 out and 36 in. Diegel has Jock Hutchinson of Chicago, Harry Hampton of Richmond, Va., and Rudolph Knepper, Sioux City amateur, at his heels with rounds of 72 each. Douglas Edgar of Atlanta, the Canadian open champion, took 73.

The pair which carried the gallery was the youthful Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, the most brilliant golfer developed in America in recent years, and the British veteran, Harry Vardon. Vardon and Jones, although separated in age by more than thirty years, hold the reputations of being two of the greatest golfing stylists in the world. They had never met before and it was not until a minute before they got off the first tee that they shook hands. When the starter called Jones and Vardon, Robby, who had been sitting with a group of friends some distance from the British, walked over and held out his hand.

"My name is Jones," said Bobby. "Glad to know you," said Vardon.

Both Players Attend Strictly to Game

They did not speak again except for a few times during the match. Each attended strictly to the business of shot making, and although they were both merely striving to obtain low scores in the brilliant golfer-like style there was quite a little rivalry apparent. Jones flashed brilliantly on the outward nine, doing a 34 to Vardon's 40. Jones took a deuce on the third hole.

Coming home the American youngster weakened a bit, while the veteran got better and reeled off a 38 to Bobby's 41. This gave them even 78 for the round. They will play together in the last half of the qualifying round. Their cards:

Jones—

MISKE SHOULD PROVE EASY

Hard to See How 165-Pounder Can Trouble Champion Dempsey Much

By JACK CONWAY

Jack Dempsey should not experience much trouble winning over Billy Miske in their ten-round bout at Benton Harbor on Labor Day. Miske only weighs 165 pounds and cannot pose to stand up under the champion's terrific punches.

The Miske supporters will point to the fact that the St. Paul man has already twice gone the distance with Dempsey, both contests were staged before "Black Jack" walloped Jess Willard. It is not believed that Dempsey was eager to flatten Miske in either of their former meetings as he needed him in his business as it were.

True, Miske is a fast, clever boxer, but this asset won't get him a great deal if Dempsey is in there to win as quickly as possible, as he was at Toledo. Any fighter who can knock out a big hulk of a man like Willard should not have a worry at a whole lot about Miske. Another thing to bear in mind is that Dempsey would not be meeting the St. Paul man if he were not dead sure he was going to win in a decisive manner.

Carter Posts Forfeits for Armory Bouts

George Carter has posted $250 with the writer. Of this sum $250 was put up for Nate Siegal who has agreed to make 145 pounds at 3 o'clock for his contest with Paddy Owens. While the other $100 was posted in behalf of Danny Krammer who is to make 120 pounds at 3:30 o'clock for his frolic with Paddy Owens. Both contests are twelve-round affairs and will be staged at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building next Tuesday night.

Reid in Line for Go With Lawrence Winner

Tal Reid put himself in line for a bout with the winner of the bouts between Robson and O'Dowd at Lawrence a week from Saturday as a result of his win over Jackie Clark at Lynn. When Reid and Clark met at the Armory Club, honors were fifty-fifty. In the bustle at Lynn, however, Reid carried the battling to his opponent and was well out in front when festivities ended.

England Loses Three Stars in Olympics

Antwerp, Aug. 11.—England's chances for scoring heavily in the Olympic games received a severe blow today when it became known that three of her potential point winners are out of competition. The men affected are those who took part in the recent Penn relays at Philadelphia with such brilliant success.

Rudd, former Oxford University star, but who is representing South Africa in the Olympics, said on arrival today that Montague and Tatham, two great middle distance men, have been forbidden to enter the games by a physician who, after an examination, pronounced each possessed of a strained heart.

Stallard, another member of the Cambridge-Oxford relay team which went to the United States, has broken his ankle and cannot compete.

TOLEDO SIDELIGHTS

By ROBERT E. HARLOW

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 11.—Leo Teller of West Penn was the only golfer from the Massachusetts district who scored well enough in the first eighteen holes to be practically certain of qualifying for the tournament proper, which opens Thursday.

George Rowden, the Massachusetts open champion, came in with a 79 and was one of eight to be 79 or better. As there were many golfers between 79 and 85 a great struggle was due today for places in the championship. George got one of the biggest surprises of his life when he walked up to the score board and found that eighty players had done 79 or better.

Rowden could have been two strokes better, and two strokes are going to look like a mountain when the final reckoning comes. He took a six on the last hole. He pushed his tee shot into a sand trap and was short with his second, and directly in front of a trap which guarded the green.

Mike Brady, the old Boston favorite, took 79 and Alex Chisholm of Portland 80. Other scores of interest to Boston were: Jack Gordon, Buffalo, 77; Tom Kerrigan Siwanoy, 81; Larry Patten, Homestead, 82; Walter Howe, Taunuk, 82; John Cowan, Oakley, 82; C. J. McGrath, Worcester, 84; William Ogg, Atlanta, 86; Fred Elliot, Woodland, 87.

C. J. McGrath, Worcester Country Club professional, had the most discouraging start of any golfer on the field. He took a nine on the first hole. He clicked his first tee shot out of bounds and his second was buried in the side of a trap, made soft by a shower. He took four to get out, put his next one and was down in three putts. This was enough to dishearten any golfer, but Cris kept plugging away and got out in 45. He returned in 41, for an 86.

There is no question about this being the greatest golf tournament ever held in the world. When the last fight for places in the qualifying round have been completed, the pick of the full field of 258 starters will begin all over again and go thirty-six holes a day for two days, to decide the championship.

By the final round of the championship proper, Saturday afternoon there will be fireworks, if some of the stars are within shooting distance of one another. Vardon and Ray, the English cracks, have little to say about this field, but one who gets in a confidential word now and then with the Britons says they are amazed with the number of star golfers who have been developed in America since they were last here.

Leo Diegel, the young Chicago professional, told his friends that he felt about right to win the tournament. He, Diegel, is not the only one on the field who feels this way. Doug las Edgar, the Atlanta professional told the writer that he was well within himself in knocking off a seventy-three today, and that he has big hopes of winning.

Of course, there is Walter Hagen, still the American golf champion, and a mighty fine fellow, even if he seems to have lost considerable prestige among the followers of the game. Hagen was a late starter today, and he went home with nothing of a card. It's not be had his usual luck, and a handful of faithful followed along.

GOLDEN WHEEL RACE TONIGHT

Wiley, Carman, Madonna and Didier to Follow Motors in Bike Classic of Year

George Wiley, Clarence Carman, Vincent Madonna and Leon Didier are the riders selected by Manager Butler to compete in the Golden Wheel Race at the Revere cycle track this evening over the fifty-mile course.

The race, which carries with it a rich purse and a diamond medal to the winner, is the real classic of the bike racing season, and even a place among the starters is a coveted honor for which all the motor-paced stars battle all year.

No arrangements have been made to handle a record-breaking crowd and the management promises that there will be no crowding as extra ticket windows will be used.

The regular card of amateur and professional events will have their regular place on the program.

MAGOUN SQUARE CIVICS IN TWO TWILIGHT GAMES

The Magoun Square "Civics" team which has developed into one of the fastest teams in this section is down for two twilight games this week, at the Bicknell Trum playground, clashing with their rivals, the old Prescott House team tonight, and the National Shawmut nine on Thursday evening.

The Somerville B. B. C. and "Civics" series which was interrupted by rain last Saturday, gets under way again next Saturday. The "Civic" boys are anxious to take the series as they intend to take on the crack Bennett A. A. later on.

RAIN MAY GIVE BRAVES REST

Single Session Slated With Reds After Brace of Double-Headers

By NICK FLATLEY.

Only one game today, and maybe not that at the Wigwam—which was a blessed relief for the Braves and the Reds and the fans who have weathered the past two double-headers.

The early rain threatened to bring a much-needed rest to all concerned. If Midsummer dual bills, unless clinched up with sparkling baseball, are about as interesting as the nomination speeches at the conventions.

The Braves and the Reds have gone through a flock of convolutions since their series started, and the general panorama has been splattered with pitchers who have been blasted off the mound. There has been a spell of thumping, as well as of torrid weather, and four hours per diem is a tough session even for the most hard boiled fan.

How can they escape being boiled and broiled out there in the bleachers these days is more than we know. Even real toil would seem soft compared with the toasting the sunshines must endure.

Which is apart from the fact that these Cincinnati Reds do not look like champions, in so far as their pitching is concerned, and a champion team has to be strong in the box. So far each pitcher that Pat Moran has dished up has been bumped viciously by the Braves, excepting Reuther, and one finger cannot win a pennant.

Reds Need Pitching Despite Batting

Luque and Ring have been knocked out, Eller was on the skids when the umpire saved the Braves the bother, and Bressler was saluted with indominate ferocity. Sallee, sent in as a relief hurler, lost a ball game, and all in all things don't look any too good for the champs of yesteryear.

For the single pastime, Moran had Reuther to come back with and Stallings and Scott.

OLD ALIBIS FOR SOX DEFEAT

Loss of Star Hitters Now Keenly Felt by Manager Barrow

St. Louis, Aug. 11.—In directing the tours of the scouts, Ed Barrow has issued instructions to bring in some fence busters. There was a time when pitching triumphed, but close ball battles appear to be things of the past. Fence busters are required nowadays and they are just what the Red Sox lack. When the pitcher failed to hold the foe inside of the four-run zone the Red Sox are lost. Joe Bush and Bernie Kerr missed this margin against the Browns and the Red Sox lost, 6 to 4.

Barrow realizes that he must have hitters who drive 'em like Stale, Burnham, Williams, Jackson, Speaker, Ellis Collins, Felsch, to ever return as a pennant factor in the American League.

The midgets fit in if they are not too many. The Red Sox have an oversupply of little snappy infielders such as McInnis, Foster, Vitt, Scott and Brady. What Barrow needs is a 200-pounder who sends the outfielders to the fences.

Sox Pitching Needs Batting Support

The pitching would look better with more batting support. Many games have been lost on this tune because the batters have not been able to brush past the opposition with a timely rally. Take the Browns in a recent game when they stepped to the eighth facing an 8-4 handicap against the Athletics. They brought in six runs and won, 10-8, and they have been sitting and hitting all season.

Four-Ball Tournament At Essex County Club

The first pair were to leave the tee early today in the opening round of play in the annual four-ball match at the Essex County Club. The tournament will extend over a period of four days, with one round today and two on Thursday and Friday. A 36-hole final match will be played Saturday.

There is plenty of talent entered in the tournament and some good play should be shown. Fred C. Newton and Bill Chick of the Country Club are the only pair who will play from scratch. Francis Ouimet and T. C. Stephenson are the next lowest in handicaps, having but one stroke allowance.

The winners of last year's match, F. D. Tucker and J. R. Ward, are entered and should be well up in the front.

"ANOTHING, a scratch," said Julian, straightening and extending his blade.

The combat was resumed more fiercely. Alvarez, now certain that the wounded man could not longer withstand him, forced the fighting. Julian waited, parried and waited and then with the last ounce of his strength seized the fleeting opening and drove home his sword.

Alvarez groaned, the doctor ran forward, blood gushed from the wound, but there was vengeance in the last sneer of the dying revealer, he knew his hour had come and he resolved to make one last attempt to carry down with him this rival who had robbed him of life.

Desperation, rancor, hatred, were all put into that last throw, and Julian dropped under it; the two lay on the ground under the big trees, in the shadow of the ruined church as the light was going out.

The doctors worked fast—for Alvarez there was no hope; his breathing ceased as they labored; for Julian there was a chance; all depended on quick service.

Where could they take him, not far, he could not be moved far. Ah, there was a cottage nearby; happy thought, they would bring him there, where he could lie on a bed and be properly attended, preparatory to being taken to his own home.

Bore Him Tenderly

Don Severo, noting with terror the deathly pallor on his brother's face, helped the physicians to lift and carry him; they went a step at a time, walking slowly, carefully, fearful of stumbling, almost afraid that he would die as they moved.

And Severo, half turning, saw the body of Alvarez being borne away. He reflected bitterly that Ernesto had been saved while Julian had paid the price for him. There was a fight in the studio, he had seen that a star of hope. The bearers toiled on.

Inside the studio half an hour before, Ernesto, deep in thought, had sat smoking, trying to figure out how he had become involved in such a frightful mesh of misfortune with no evil thought of his own. The parallel he had drawn from the reading of Paolo received to him now; the angry face of Julian when he had sent him away rose before him; the frightened eyes of Teodora haunted him now. Apparently because of him terrible things had happened to this man and woman whom he held dearer than all the rest of the world. And he was powerless.

A knock, now of hesitation, but of urgency presaging trouble. The post opened the door and faced the woman who had been in his thoughts, "Teodora, you here!"

More madness went whirling through his brain; she stepped in and he closed the door behind her.

There was a lamp on a small centre table and she stood in its rays showing a face of great pallor, eyes of great anguish. "Ernes-

Anecdotes of the Famous

In his new book, "Records," a companion volume to "Memories," Lord Fisher has several good anecdotes of King Edward VII. On one occasion, Lord Fisher was a guest at Sandringham when the party was a particularly large one.

"As I was zero in this grand party," he writes, "I stuck off to my room to write an important letter; then I took my coat off, got out my keys, unlocked my portmanteau and began unpacking. I had a hoot in each hand, 'What on earth are you doing?' Unpacking, Sir. 'Where's your servant?' He won't get one, Sir.' 'Where is he?' 'Never had one, Sir; couldn't afford it.' 'Put those boots down; sit in that armchair.' And he went and sat in the other, on the other side of the fire. I thought to myself, 'This is a rum state of affairs! Here's the King of England sitting in my bedroom on one side of the fire and I'm in my shirt sleeves sitting in an armchair on the other side!'

"'Well,' His Majesty said, 'why didn't you ring and say how do you do' when you arrived?' I said, 'I had a letter to write, and with so many great people you were receiving, I thought I had better come to my room.' Then he went on with a long conversation, until it was only about a quarter of an hour from dinner-time, and I hadn't unpacked! So I said to the King, 'Sir, you'll be angry if I'm late for dinner, and no doubt your Majesty has two or three gentlemen to dress you, but I have no one.'

"And he gave me a sweet smile and went off."

The Adventures of Ann

By HAL COFFMAN

To John Harwood's bow, she smiled.

CHAPTER I.

ANN SHERIDAN was the youngest of three sisters. Her mother had died at the time Ann's big brown eyes had opened to the world. Ann's sisters, Claire and Betty, were plain, everyday girls who worked hard and tried to give Ann the advantages of schooling they had missed. Their father worked at night, so Ann seldom saw much of him, as he usually slept most of the day.

Ann went to school and kept house for the family. While they did not have any of the luxuries of life, they were comfortable and happy among themselves. But Ann had reached an age where she began to notice that other girls went to theatres and dances and had beaus and good times.

Also she was unable to understand why SHE could not have these diversions, too. For Ann, like many other girls, was attracted by the glitter of the tinsel, thinking it gold. Claire and Betty realized how pretty Ann was and tried to shield and protect her from all temptation.

Frank Langdon, with his mother, lived in the same apartment house with the Sheridans. Frank had known the girls for years and was looked upon as a friend of the family. His one joy in life seemed to be in teasing Ann, but in his boyish way, under it all, he liked her the best of the sisters and always thought of her as being THE Mrs. Langdon some day when he made money enough for them both to live on.

Ann had a really good voice and her singing teacher in school—who lived near them—took an extra interest in her for that reason and tried to help her all she could. Also she tried to impress upon Ann that nothing worth while in life is ever achieved except by hard work. Ann liked to sing, but the hard work of practicing did not appeal to her in the slightest. Her mind was on some pretty gown she had seen in a window much more than on the score in front of her.

* * * * *

John Harwood—yes, the same rich John Harwood of whose escapades you often read in the papers—was coming down the stairs one day in the apartment house where Ann lived, after a visit to a mysterious woman on the top floor whom the other tenants of the house seldom saw, as she went out only at night and then closely veiled. Ann was coming along the hall singing as she met Harwood. To his low she smiled and went on into her apartment. "Those eyes, those eyes," was Harwood's exclamation as he went down the stairs to his waiting limousine.

(In tomorrow's chapter an admirer of Ann takes her to a cabaret.)

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Test of Love

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A short time ago I met a young lady who is good-looking and has a way about her that I like. I have been going to theatres and entertainments with her for two weeks with the consent of her parents.

Her right arm is amputated, and at a recent entertainment some friends of mine were urging me to give her up because of her deformity. She overheard the conversation, called me aside and said we had not better see each other again. As I like the young lady I do not want to give her up.

A. J. T.

OF course you don't want to give up the girl you love for a thing which is, after all, only an ugly accident. Equally, of course, the girl's pride was hurt when she heard your friends advising you against her. But if you're any kind of a man you'll make her realize that what matters in her congeniality—her character and the friendship which is more important than the maiming, for which she shouldn't be made to suffer. Don't call it a deformity. It's simply a sad loss.

A Gay Time vs. Settling Down

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-two, and for two years have been going about with a girl three years my junior. I love her dearly and want to marry her, but I feel that marriage is "settling down," and being very fond of a good time, I don't feel like settling down yet. Now, I would like to continue going with this girl for about three or four more years, both of us having as much fun as we can, and then marrying, but as she is very pretty, I know I cannot hold her such a long time without showing her that I intend marrying her, and I don't think it would be fair to her to tell her I want to marry her, and then keep keep her waiting that long. In short, Miss Fairfax, I don't want to marry yet, but I am afraid by her speaking my thoughts to her, by the time I do want to marry her, I will have lost her. Please advise what to do.

YOU want to "eat your cake and have it, too," as the old saying goes, don't you? And it can't be done. There's no way of having everything in this old world of ours, and we have also to pay for everything. If a good time means more to you than the love of a girl—by all means be true to yourself and go after the good time, but then don't you whimper if you lose out with the girl. Actually, I think you'd be a bit foolish to marry yet—and I agree with you as to what you owe the girl, and what you have a right to expect "under the circumstances."

Does Not Approve Friends

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen, considered pretty and have a pleasant disposition. I am making $15 per week, but I am sick and tired of life for this one reason:

I have no boy friends at all. I go with quite a few girls and all of them have their fellow friends except me. Of course, I can have them, but my father does not approve of them. My mother simply has nothing to say, he has it all. My mother thinks a girl should have her friends if she meets them and treats them in the proper way. I simply am really afraid to broach the subject, or ever taking the chance of having a boy call on me, and I would never meet one on the corner.

CONNIE

IT is unfortunate when a father takes this point of view, and many marriages with undesirables are made when girls have no means of meeting their friends freely and with parental consent.

If your mother has no influence with your father in this matter, perhaps you can prevail on someone outside the family circle to talk with him. In a similar case, a girl got her parish priest to reason with her stern parent and the father finally yielded, and there were pleasant gatherings under the family roofTree and no more meetings on street corners, as had been the social method in this case.

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

WHEN I got back from hurrying Daisy Condon from my apartment by the back entrance, I found Jim in my room holding in one hand the orchid negligee I had carelessly thrown down, in the other my pearl ring. He looked up quizzically.

"Where did this come from?" he demanded, holding out the ring. "Was it magic? How did you get it back? Did the thief come across through noble remorse, or did you throw a scare into said thief?"

At sound of that word, something caught in my throat. A man's idea of justice—Jim's idea of justice might not be satisfied by what I'd done. I dared not tell Jim the truth, and yet I couldn't bring myself to tell him a deliberate lie in so many words. But I could arrange matters so he'd draw his own conclusions.

"Wait a minute," I cried, "wait a minute and you shall hear. I promised Aunt Mollie Pettingill I'd call her up within the hour and it's long past that. She may be waiting in for me."

I took down the receiver, gave the number and sat praying for a quick connection. A miracle gave it to me, and in another moment or two I was telling Aunt Mollie the half lies that must serve for truth.

"I have the ring," I said. "You ought to see the tableaux now.

My Jimmie's standing with the recovered jewel in one hand and the orchid negligee you suspected in the other. How can I thank you?"

"Wait a minute," cried Aunt Mollie's voice from the other end of the wire. "Wait while I tell Neddie he was right. Neddie, Neddie! You were right, too! Our Anne found her ring just as you said—right in the dress she was wearing when the jewel disappeared. Wait a minute, Anne, my boy wants to speak to you."

Then Uncle Ned's voice came over the wire:

"So you got the ring, little girl. Now, that's fine after all. And, as my bride said, there wasn't any thief."

And No Regrets

"It was you who said that," I replied, thankful I could go right on equivocating. "No, there isn't any thief. And I'll sew the hem of my negligee very carefully right away. I can't tell you how grateful I am to you for the inspiration. It's a terrible thing to judge people guilty over if they are, and when no one is—actually guilty—it's too cruel to think about. Now I have my birthday gift—and no regrets."

"Your birthday gift" ejaculated Uncle Ned. "Why, this makes it a kind of double party, a second one now."

"Oh, I haven't had the great day yet," I laughed. "So I'll really have three gala days with my ring—the one when I got it, today because I found it again and the one it celebrates."

Then a grateful good-by and I turned to Jim, who had flung himself down on the chaise lounge and was lying inert, with closed eyes.

"Now, aren't you glad I saved you from handing that detective bureau a wad of money?" I asked.

There was a queer, tense moment before Jim replied. He kept his eyes shut, and I noticed the perpendicular frown between them as he spoke jerkily.

"Sure am, especially as I'd have felt several kinds of a fool when the cop sleuthed out the truth in a hand. He might have thought it a bit careless and untidy for my wife to have draped her negligee on the chair

BERGDOLL'S KIN FOUGHT YANKS

Told Draft Official He Had Relatives in the German Army, Says Witness

By Universal Service.

New York, Aug. 11.—Erwin Bergdoll, millionaire slacker, undergoing trial by court-martial at Governor's Island, would not fight because he had relatives in the German army, according to testimony given by William S. Ellis, head of the Philadelphia draft board, with which Bergdoll was registered.

Bergdoll's initial appeals for deferred classification were denied and both he and his brother were placed on the active list. According to the witness, Bergdoll visited the board and, after reading of the charge against him, made a strong plea for a deferred rating.

Bergdoll was first found missing in May 19, 1918, when he appeared at Governor's Island on July 21st last and gave himself up. He was taken under heavy guard from the guard house to Corbin Hall where the trial took place. He pleaded not guilty to the formal reading of the charge against him.

FOUR INJURED BY FALL FROM STAGING

Fall River, Aug. 11.—Charles Cleary of Boston and three other men from this city, Joseph H. Nadeau, Alfred Landry and David Brosseau, were badly hurt by falling thirty feet from a staging while working on the construction of a new theatre here.

GAINS GENERAL AT OPENING

Equipments and Steels Among Leaders; Oils, Rails and Sugars Also Advance

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, gains ranging from fractions to five points. Equipments and steels were conspicuous for strength, while oils, rails, sugars and motors figured in the advance. The market was not as active as during previous mornings this week, first hour transactions totaling less than 130,000 shares.

Call loans renewed at 7 per cent. The foreign exchange market was stronger, demand sterling opening a cent higher at $3.64. Continental rates ruled firmer.

Among issues to show gains at noon were Gen Products, American Locomotive, Sumatra, American Sugar, Can American, Punta Alegre, Chandler, Haskell & Barker, International Paper, Kelly Springfield, Maxwell, Mexican Petroleum, Texas American, United Fruit and Vanadium.

UP AT THE OUTSET.

Gains were the rule at the opening and the trend was upward for the first thirty minutes. The movement was general but not pronounced. Most advances were small, but there were a number of issues which sold more than a point higher on initial transactions. Oils were early leaders, rail steels, equipments, leather and some specialties quickly fell into line. Delaware, Lackawanna & Western was off a point at the start but on a few transactions recovered and sold four above Tuesday's closing price. Among other strong rails were Rock Island, Southern Pacific, Reading and New York Central. Crucible lead rails for gains but U. S. Steel, Republic and Bethlehem were all up a point or more. Studebaker did the best in that respect among motors. Baldwin was first among equipments. Sugars showed improvement and Barrett, Industrial Alcohol and Food Products figured in the advance.

SUPPORTED BY INSIDERS.

The public had no hand in the upward movement of the morning, the demand being attributed entirely to insiders. Technical considerations have induced covering on considerable scale. Liquidation is believed to be over for the present. It was quite drastic recently as at any time during the year, and included selling of interests that profited paper profits last year to paying a share of actual increment to the government in the form of income taxation. Statements that the French government might not be able to pay its part of the Anglo-French loan of half a billion dollars, which matures in October, were promptly denied in banking circles. It is stated that arrangements have been made already for the shipment of more than eight tons of gold from the Bank of France to Consolidated which averaged on a test essay more than $20 to the ton. The first regular shipment from the mines and mill of the Consolidated Mex. Sutcliffe, treasurer of the company.

By Robert W. Chambers

THEN there was a faint clash and flash of iridescence, and the Prince Siddhartha confronted her, golden-eyed, golden-skinned, golden-haired, magnificent in his golden vestments.

"Oswald!" she cried. "Oh, I am glad, Jim! You and Oswald will be friends, won't you? You're such dears—you simply must like each other!"

An Invitation

They shook hands, looking with curious intentness at each other.

"I've always liked you, Cleland," said Grismer gracefully. "I don't think you ever cared for me very much, but I wish you might."

"I have found you—agreeable, Grismer. We were friendly at school and college together"—

"I hope our friendliness may continue."

"I—hope so."

Grismer smiled.

"Drop in whenever you care to, Cleland, and talk things over. We've a lot to say to each other, I think."

"Thanks." . . . He looked hard at Grismer. "All right; I'll do it."

Grismer nodded.

"I've a kennel of sorts in Bleecker street. But you might be interested in one or two things I'm working on. You see," he added with careless good humor, "I'm obliged to work now."

Cleland said in a low voice:

"I'm sorry things went wrong with you."

"Oh, they didn't. It was quite all right, Cleland. I really don't mind. Will you really drop in some day soon?"

"Yes."

Dancing began again. Grismer stepped back with the easy, graceful courtesy that became him, conceding Stephanie to Cleland as a matter of course; and the latter, who had been ready to claim her, found himself discarded and advanced.

"Is it Grismer's dance, Steve?" he asked.

"I promised him. But, Jim, I'm afraid to let you go"——

Rather Surprising

They all laughed, and she added:

"When a girl gets a man back after three long years, is it astonishing that she keeps tight hold of him?"

"You'd better dance with her, Cleland," said Grismer, smiling.

But Cleland could not accept a gift from this man, and he surrendered her with sufficient grace.

"Jim!" she said fretfully, "you're not going after that dryad, are you? She's exceedingly common and quite shamelessly underdressed. Shall I introduce you to a nice girl—or do you know a sufficient number?"

"You know," he said, laughing; "that I ought to play my part of Fourth Cavalier and go and capture a pretty widow"——

"What!"

"Certainly" he said tranquilly; "didn't all take prisoner Aveaha, the youthful widow of Mohammed? I'll think about while you're dancing"——

"I don't wish you to!" she exclaimed, half vexed, half laughing. "Oswald, does he mean it?"

"He looks as though he does," replied Grismer, amused. "There's a Goddess of Night over there, Cleland—very pretty and very uncon-cealed under a cloud of spangled stars"——

"Oswald! I don't wish him to! Jim! Listen to me, please"——for he had already started toward the little brunette Goddess of Night. "We have not seven! Please remember. I shall wait for you!"

"Right!" he nodded, now interested in her disappearing her; a little excited, too, by her solicitude, yet sullenly understanding that it sprang from no deeper emotion than her youthful heart had yet betrayed for him. No woman ever let a man go willingly whether she cared or knew—whether she had use for him or not.

Kept Jim in View

Stephanie, managing to keep Jim in view among the dancers, saw the little Goddess of Night, with her impudent uptilted nose, floating amid her scandalously diaphanous draperies in his arms through a dreamy tango, farther and farther away from her.

Things went wrong with her, too; she dropped her emerald girdle and severed the pearl from its fastening away; the silk of her body vest ripped, revealing snowy skin, and she had to knot her scarf high. Then the jewelled thong of her left sandal snapped and she lost it for a moment.

"Oh, Jim!" she said, slipping her bare foot into it and half skating toward the nearest lower-tier box.

"There he is over there," remarked Grismer, indicating a regulation Mephistopheles wearing a blood-stained beard with a number of superfluous points. "Wait; I'll borrow a lace of him!"

The devil was polite and had no objection to being despoiled; and Grismer came back with a chamois thong and mended her sandal for her while she sat in their box and watched the tumult surging below.

He chatted gaily with her for a while, leaning there on the box's edge beside her, but Stephanie had become smilingly attentive and preoccupied, and he watched her in silence, now curiously, a little perplexed by her preoccupation. For it was most unusual for Her to betray inattention when with him. It was not like her. He could not remember her ever being visibly inconsiderate in him—ever displaying preoccupation or indifference when in his company.

However the excitement of seeing her brother again so unexpectedly accounted for it, no doubt.

The excitement and pleasure of seeing her—brother! A slight consciousness of the fact that there was no actual kinship between this girl and Cleland passed through his mind without disturbing his tranquility. He merely happened to think of it—he happened to recollect it, that was all.

"Stephanie!"

"Yes."

"Shall we sit out this dance? Your sandal string will hold."

"I don't know," she said. "Who is that dancing with Helen? Over there on the left"——

"I see her. I don't know—oh, yes—it's Phil Grayson."

"Is it? I wonder where Jim went with that woman! I'm horribly thirsty, Oswald."

"Shall we have some supper?"

"Where is it? Oh, down there! What a stuffy place! It's too awful. Couldn't you get something here?"

He managed it quickly enough, finding and distracted waiter, and after a long while he brought a tray towering with salads, ices and bottles.

Helen and Philip Grayson came back and the former immediately revealed a healthy appetite.

"Don't you want anything to eat, Steve?" she inquired. "This shrimp salad isn't bad."

"I'm not hungry."

"You seem to be thirsty," remarked Helen, looking at the girl's flushed face and her half-filled wine glass. "Where is Jim?"

"Dancing."

"With whom."

"Some girl of sorts whom he picked up," said Stephanie, and the pink flush in her face deepened angrily.

"Was she worth it?" inquired Helen, frankly amused.

Stephanie's cheeks cooled; she replied, carelessly:

ASK MR. FIXIT

Dear Mr. Fixit:
I would like to ask you a few questions about automobiles. Inasmuch as I don't know them myself, I want to know if the steering gear on a Chevrolet and Buick can be changed over to the right side and if it is it is very expensive. If not are there any small changes being made now with the right hand steering gear?
E. I. C.
Quincy.

Most cars made for export are equipped with right-hand steering gear. I do not know whether you could get one of these for use in this country or not. You would have to take that up with the factory or agent of these cars. It would be a very expensive job to make the change right now. I cannot think of any small car now made with a right-hand steering gear although there are several cars of the heavier type which come equipped in this manner.

Dear Mr. Fixit:
I own a 1920 model Buick and am somewhat puzzled over the hot and cold air control. Below is a sketch of the spindle for which is on the dash board. I would like to know if I am supposed to run the rod "hot" or "cold" on trips. How should I run it with the heat regulator in the "Warm" or "Cool" position? Please explain this. Also I have a squeaking noise in my generator. What could cause it?
Boston.

The words "hot" "cold" and "choke" refer to the air going into the carburetor and not the thermal conditions of the cylinders. In warm weather you should not run with the pointer at "cold," but about one-third of the way over to "hot." As the weather gets cold it will be necessary to run the button further over towards "hot." In very cold weather you should run in the "hot" position. The "choke" position is for "starting back" through the carburetor, more needle a little towards "hot" than "cold" should be used only for the first few minutes in starting the motor in order to get the motor started hard. The squeaking in the generator is probably due to brushes. They may be worn so that you need a new set, but probably the position may be changed a little or the commutator can be smoothed down with sand paper. It is probably the latter. Clean the brush holder which is making the squeak. Look at the commutator and smooth the surface with sand paper. If the surfaces are glazed or shiny, they also need to be touched up.

Dear Mr. Fixit:
I am driving a Stevens-Duryea, Model "AA." My horn, after using it for a while, gets weak and then goes entirely dead. Can you advise me what is the trouble? Would this indicate a week storage battery? Also there is the head light. Is there a rheostat or dimming device on the instrument board? If so, where is it located? I would appreciate some advice on this trouble.
Lowell.

Your trouble is probably due to a weak battery. Have it tested and if found weak, have it re-charged or replaced with a new one. We would suggest making a comprehensive test after you had come to Boston and a trip. Such test should show at least 1,250

Force Cannot Halt an Idea

By use of force the powerful government of Great Britain has prevented one elderly man from setting foot on the soil of his native land.

Archbishop Mannix will not be able to visit his kinsfolk in Ireland or give the aid of his physical presence to the cause he holds so dear.

The mightiest of foreign governments with ships of war has tried to halt the spread of an idea.

It will fail, of course. Force always fails to stifle sincere beliefs.

Three hundred and ninety-nine years ago last April, similar effort to impound an idea was taken, at the Diet of Worms, against the son of a poor German miner. Martin Luther said:

Here I stand. I cannot do otherwise. God help me.

And, so refusing to take back what he believed to be the truth, he laid the foundation of a historic movement which has profoundly influenced the progress of mankind.

Whether the power that would chain a thought be that of Protestant Britain directed against a prelate of the Roman Catholic Church or that of the Papacy directed against a dissenting monk, the element of force is equally and forever futile.

All history teaches this, but men are loath to learn the lesson.

We Americans think it silly in the great British government to use a fleet of warships to seize a lone traveler on the high sea and bear him away to an obscure Cornish port so that the message he would speak in behalf of human freedom may not reach the ears intended.

But would we have treated him differently if, instead of being the Archbishop of Australia, bound to aid in freeing Ireland, he had been a son of revolutionary Russia come among us to tell of Lenin and his regime?

Men are much alike the world over.

They delight to hear what they like to hear and they delight to muzzle lips that offend or alarm.

Yet the size of Britain's effort to hush this brave Irishman dramatizes his cause before the world and adds to his lone voice the emphasis of a legion of tongues.

Do YOU Want More War?

"I have walked the streets, days and nights out, until the soles of my feet seemed as though they were red hot coals, and haven't landed a permanent position yet that would support my family."

This is an extract from a letter written by an ex-soldier.

He was gassed, and spent nineteen months in various hospitals. Now that the war is over, he is unable to get a job.

His experience is that of thousands of other young men who fought under the Stars and Stripes in the great war.

They marched away with bands blaring, and colors flying, and people cheering them, and telling how much they loved the soldiers.

They passed through months of discomfort in camp, and additional months of miseries on the field of action. Some died. Others lingered long in hospitals, as this letter writer lingered.

All suffered privation in one form and another. Now they are unable to get jobs. Now they are forgotten. They walk the streets until the soles of their feet are raw, but there is no work for them. Two years, or more, out of their lives for this!

How many of these young men would feel a thrill over the prospect of again packing into transports and sailing away to another war?

How many of these young men, victims of an ungrateful republic, could feel the same stir in their blood at the sound of the bands and the cheering if suddenly summoned from their fruitless task of job hunting to shoulder arms once more and cross the seas to new fields of misery and bloodshed?

Yet that is where they might now be bound if this country were a full-fledged member of the League of Nations.

They might now be on their way to Warsaw to fight in a war which is none of their making, of which they know little and care less.

And at the finish they would again be back home—if they escaped the gas, and the bullets, and the sickness—to resume walking the streets "days and nights out, until the soles of their feet seemed as though they were red hot coals."

Melvin O. Adams

Practical men will tell you that there is no man so important that another cannot fill his place. That is not strictly true. It applies merely in the business sense.

For instance, it will be impossible to fill the place in the life of Boston made vacant by the passing away of Melvin O. Adams. Some shrewder business manager may be found for the Narrow Gauge railroad. Keener lawyers perhaps may absorb his law office practice, although few will attain a more respected station at the bar.

But the place he adorned most conspicuously was the place of common man. There he was the soul of good cheer, at whose approach gloom vanished. There his lovable qualities shortened his name until "Mel" Adams was pronounced with affection.

His generosity was quick and unpublished. He was the benefactor to many a young graduate of Dartmouth who will hold him always in reverent memory. The old "grads" will meet and miss him sadly. All who knew him will miss his smile and cheerful greeting. Just because he could not help radiating sunshine and hastening life it will be impossible to replace him.

More Truth Than Poetry

Try This on Your Ouija Board

By S. E. KISER

I HATE like sin to be complaining,
I try to keep my courage high;
The wounds and bruises that are paining
Don't cease to pain us when we cry,
And so I try to keep refraining
From being tortured by regret;
But always, darn it, when it's raining,
Some plan I've made is all upset.

I CAN'T see any gain in bleating
If now and then things go amiss.
The man who whines at Fate is cheating
Himself alone; but tell me this,
Why is it one is always meeting
New troubles when the old ones go?
New bugs and worms are always eating
The plants that we have coaxed to grow.

I SEE the uselessness of sighing,
The poor rewards that grieving brings;
My purpose is to keep on trying
To win my way to better things;
But, darn it, there is no denying
That when I get a raise of pay
I have to do so much more buying
That all I've gained is frisked away.

I'VE long been claiming that I thought it
A sign of weakness to be glum;
Where doubt assailed me I have fought it
And hoped for better things to come.
But tell me why it is, dod rot it!
That that which roused our ecstasies,
While, striving earnestly, we sought it,
When claimed, becomes a piece of cheese?

Letters to the Editor

Loves the Old Songs

Editor Boston American:

I feel sure that many of your readers would appreciate the band concerts given by the city on the Common daily much better if there were more variety in the program. What has become of the old melodies we love so well, such as Southern, Irish and Scotch songs? A little less classical music and something we could all enjoy would be more acceptable.

Turn to the Right

Editor Boston American:

I am a constant reader of the Boston American and love to read Mr. Brisbane's editorials. I wish you would, through your valuable paper, call the public attention for everybody to turn to the right when they meet on the street. There are so many foreigners in Boston that, turning to the left, as is the custom in their own countries, causes a mixup many times on street corners and everywhere there is a crowd. This would, in my opinion, save a good deal of congestion.

Soldiers' Outing

Editor Boston American:

After reading the article written about the wounded "soldier boys," given a day's pleasure on the estate of Mr. Louis K. Liggett, I thought it a wonderful treat and surely what the Yankee boys deserve. This gentleman recognizes and appreciates what they have done. So do many more, but they don't think. But now the movement is started, surely more good times will follow. I wish my son was here to enjoy the "outing."

ULTIMATE AIMS OF BRITISH LABOR

By Arthur Henderson, M.P.

(The Famous British Labor Leader.)

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The Labor party is admittedly rising steadily to a position of political ascendency in Great Britain.

The chief reason for this is that it is more truly representative of the spirit of the times than either of the other political parties. It has a more intimate and sympathetic understanding of the aspirations of those who are responsible, whether by brain work or manual labor, for the material prosperity of the nation. In its comprehensive program of reconstruction it has provided a practical policy which aims at translating those popular aspirations into realities.

The ultimate aim of the Labor party is a reconstructed system of society founded upon the widest possible form of democracy, and in which all members will co-operate in fruitful service in order to provide for every member of society an opportunity to enjoy that fullness and richness of life which is the rightful inheritance, of every citizen.

Graduated Tax Urged

The Labor party proposes a graduated tax on capital—which will not affect small capital holdings—as the only means whereby a drastic reduction of our national financial burden can be secured within a few years. With regard to the principles of taxation, Labor is opposed to all forms of indirect taxation, and proposes that all revenue should be raised by direct taxation on the basis of ability to pay. Thus the incidence of all taxes would be clearly understood by taxpayers. The tea duty, the excess profits duty and other similar taxes are in effect indirect taxes which fall ultimately upon the community, and they are in contradiction to the principle of taxation in accordance with ability to pay.

As a first step in the reorganization of industry we advocate the elimination of private ownership from the staple industries and services of the nation, such as coal, transport, electricity and shipping, in order to secure that they shall be operated, not for private profit, but for the benefit of the whole community.

Taken by State

There is no question of confiscating privately owned enterprises; they would be taken over by the State on fair terms and would be worked under a system of joint control, which would provide the workers with a higher status in their industry than they enjoy under private enterprise and make them real partners with the State in the control of their industry. It is only by such a system of democratic control that bureaucratic control, with all its devitalizing effects, can be avoided.

Stars and Stripes

Most of the prominent men are loved for the checks they sign.

So it was Clemenceau who ordered Poland to bait the Bear. But it isn't Clemenceau who is paying the price.

It is easy enough to get a line on a man's character by considering whether he would be elevated or pulled down by being elected Vice-President.

Last year the Panama Canal made a book profit of $2,000,000, not counting interest charges or depreciation. But its real profit was in its public service. That is the kind of profit the public wants.

Mother used to hum so gladly as she hurried here and there;
Now she moves around so sadly,
and has nothing new to wear;
Father used to be full-chested, but
he heard of Texas oil;
It's a year since he invested and got back to daily toil.

WHY EARTH ROTATES ON ITS AXIS

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Will you kindly explain why the earth, or in fact any body in the planetary system, should rotate on its axis?—A. H., Great Kills, N. Y."

THE rotation of the planets on their axes and their revolution around their joint centre, the sun, are phenomena which probably arose from a common cause.

It is most easily accounted for by the old Laplacean theory of the origin of the solar system from a rotating and contracting nebula. Without any exception, all the planets revolve in the same direction around the sun, which accords with that of the rotation of the original nebula, and, with the exception only of the two most distant ones, Uranus and Neptune, they all rotate on their axes in the direction of their revolution, and Neptune rotates backward, i. e., its axis is tipped over top for bottom.

To see the effect of such a reversal take a small wheel, or a pasteboard circle turning on a pin, hold it at arm's length and swing round upon your heels, at the same time setting the wheel, or circle, with its axis held vertical, to rotating in the same direction as your own motion. Then turn the pin, or axle, upside down, while the wheel, or circle, continues to rotate the same way as before, and you will find that now the rotation is opposite in direction to the revolution.

Various attempts have been made to account for the fact that while six of the eight planets (and the sun itself turns the same way on its own axis) rotate in the direction of their revolution around the sun, the remaining two planets depart from this rule.

Prof. Pickering's Theory.

Professor W. H. Pickering has an interesting theory to the effect that originally all the planets rotated "backward," or contrary to their revolutions, but that the axes of the inner ones have been gradually tipped over, nearly end for end, as a consequence of the tidal action of the sun.

On Neptune, the most distant known planet, very little effect has been produced, so that its axis remains nearly in its original position. Uranus, being nearer the sun, has had its axis tipped half way over, so that its plane of rotation is now about at right angles to its plane of revolution. All the planets inside the orbit of Uranus have had their axes almost completely reversed, making their directions of rotation and revolution virtually identical.

Considering this theory with reference to the earth, it might be cited to explain the former prevalence of a warm climate at the poles but for the fact that the reversal must have been completed long before the earth had become a life-bearing globe.

This theory interestingly undertakes to explain the fact that while the axes of the small planets, Mars and the earth, are inclined 23 or 24 degrees to the planes of their revolution, the axis of the large planet Jupiter is inclined only 5 degrees.

Explanation Necessary.

Mars and the earth, Professor Pickering says, because they are relatively small, cooled and solidified ages ago, while Jupiter, in consequence of its vast size, is still but partly cooled, and remains subject to the effect of the sun's tidal action, the consequence being that the process of reversal of the axis has continued with Jupiter long after ceasing with the earth and Mars, and may possibly go on until Jupiter's equator lies exactly in the plane of his orbit.

But a difficulty to be explained away is that the great planet Saturn, which is more distant than Jupiter, and still farther from solidification, has an axial inclination a little greater even than the earth's.

If we take the planetesimal hypothesis of the origin of the solar system instead of the nebular hypothesis, we still find that the rotation of the planets is an almost necessary consequence of the assumed mode of formation of the system. But in this case, according to Chamberlin, the inventor of the planetesimal hypothesis, the direction of rotation imparted by the infall of planetesimals on a forming planet would probably be direct and not retrograde, so that there would be no necessity for any upsetting of the axes such as Pickering suggests.
